Brenda: Hi, Betty, are you busy?
Betty: I'm not! Are you ok? Are you crying?
Brenda: I can't _____ up with his need to prove he's always right.
Betty: _____ on! I'll get comfortable. ... Ok, I'm ready. Tell me everything.
Brenda: I think this is it. I used to _____ up to him. He has changed a lot. How could I be so dumb?!
Betty: Come on! Don't say that! Well... you were a little dumb, but that doesn't matter now. So,you finally want to _____ up? I hope it's definite this time. I mean, you two are always _____ out over the most ridiculous topics, and _____ up after a couple of hours as if nothing had happened.
Brenda: Please, stop! I called you because I thought you would _____ me up. I'm devastated!
Betty: Sorry! The last thing I want is to make you feel bad. You know you can _____ on me. Always.
Brenda: I know. Thanks for _____ up the phone. You are a loyal friend. I mean, it's 4:00 am!
Betty: Of course! You are my best friend. We_____ up together. Our parents are very close, we do everything together... I want to _____ after you.
Brenda: I know! And I'm grateful. We should _____ out some time. I don't want to be alone because he might _____ me up, and I don't have the guts to _____ up.
Betty: Let's do it. Let's _____ together next Saturday.
Brenda: Great! Love you! Bye, _____ care.
