Hi everyone. I'm going to tell you about a new video game that I've played a lot (1) _____, called Sky Jam. It's produced by the same (2) _____ that made Road Jam a few years ago, which was set in a city of course. Instead of streets and huge (3) _____, though, you'll find yourself living in a (4) _____ in this game.

It's an (5) _____ game because you have to answer questions in order to make progress, as well as by moving through the (6) _____. You'll be asked all sorts of things regarding (7) _____, which you have to learn on the way from the many helpful creatures you meet, such as (8) _____ and bats.

There are 30 (9) _____ in the whole game, which are supposed to become more and more (10) _____ as you go on. I found the one called 'the (11) _____', almost impossible, even though it comes well before the last level, called 'the frog', which didn't seem so (12) _____.

There are lots of things to love about this game. The story you learn about as you continue through the game is (13) _____, second only to the characters you can play, who are (14) _____ and extremely interesting too. Learning to play the game is easy and fun, too.

(15) _____, unlike the eight players who could play against each other in Road Jam, (16) _____ people at the most can (17) _____ in this game at any one time. I found this to be a few too many, though, and (18) _____
