

DIFFERENTIATED E-WORKSHEET NARRATIVE TEXT

FOR 10TH GRADE

WORKSHEET I

STUDENTS' WORKSHEETS

CLASS : 10

SUBJECT : ENGLISH

TOPIC : NARRATIVE TEXT

LEARNING OUTCOMES PHASE E (CLASS X) ELEMENTS OF READING VIEWING

By the end of Phase E, students read and respond to a variety of texts, such as narratives, descriptions, procedures, expositions, recount and report. They read to learn or to find information. They locate and evaluate specific details and main ideas of a variety of texts. These texts may be in the form print or digital texts, including visual, multimodal or interactive texts. They are developing understanding of main ideas, issues or plot development in a variety of texts. They identify the author's purposes and are developing simple inferential skills to help them understand implied information from the texts.

LEARNING OBJECTIVES

Students can identify, analyze and explain the social function, text structure and linguistic elements of narrative texts.

INSTRUCTIONS

1. You are free to determine the name of your group
2. Each group is given a different text
3. Answer the questions together with your group mates

MEMBER'S NAME
CLASS
LEARNING OBJECTIVES	Students can identify, analyze and explain the social function, text structure and linguistic elements of narrative texts.
INSTRUCTION	1. Read this LKPD carefully before you do the assignment. 2. Discuss the assignment/problem in groups 3. If you encounter obstacles/problems in completing the assignment, consult the teacher.

Princess Kemarau

In the ancient kingdom of South Sumatra, a prolonged drought had plagued the land for many years, causing widespread famine and thirst among its inhabitants. The king, deeply troubled by the incessant dry spell, was at a loss on how to alleviate the suffering of his people. He had a daughter, an exquisite and benevolent princess named Jelitani. However, owing to her birth during this relentless drought, she was commonly referred to by the kingdom as Princess Kemarau (Dry Princess).

Despite the harsh conditions, Jelitani blossomed into a paragon of beauty and kindness. One fateful day, an astrologer arrived at the palace, proclaiming that the enduring drought could only be vanquished by the dreams of the Dry Princess. Decades elapsed, and the kingdom remained ensnared by the unyielding drought, with its people descending further into destitution and despair. The king, undeterred, continued to seek a solution to the unrelenting dry season.

"My beloved daughter," the king implored, "there was once a seer who foretold that this kingdom's salvation lies within your dreams. Have you ever experienced any peculiar dreams?"

"Father," Princess Kemarau responded with gentle reproach, "we must place our faith in the divine rather than in prophecies. I am confident that our nation's plight will soon come to an end."

Moved by his daughter's wisdom, the king sought her forgiveness for his credulity. One night, Princess Kemarau had a vivid dream in which she encountered her mother. Though she had never met her mother, who had perished shortly after her birth, the vision was unmistakably clear.

"Our land will flourish if a woman willingly offers herself as a sacrifice by casting herself into the sea," her mother intoned in the dream.

The princess, upon awakening, recounted the dream to her father. "What course of action must we take?" the king inquired, his voice tinged with apprehension.

Resolute, Princess Kemarau decided to fulfill the sacrificial act delineated in her dream. With a heavy heart, she prepared to leap into the ocean. As her body submerged beneath the waves, torrents of rain began to pour from the sky. The parched earth soaked up the revitalizing water, and the people rejoiced, their long-standing misery finally alleviated. Yet, amidst the jubilation, the king grieved the loss of his cherished daughter.

That night, the king was visited by a dream. In it, he was told that Jelitani was still alive, residing atop the highest hill in the region. At dawn, accompanied by his guards, the king journeyed to the peak. From afar, he discerned the figure of his daughter, Princess Kemarau, standing majestically. Overwhelmed with relief and joy, the king embraced his daughter, overjoyed that she had survived the ordeal.

Directions: Choose the best answer (A, B, C, D, or E) for each question by circling the letter or writing the letter on the answer sheet.

1. What was the main problem facing the kingdom of South Sumatra?

- A) The kingdom was under attack.
- B) The land was suffering from a prolonged drought.
- C) The crops were damaged by floods.
- D) The king had no heir.
- E) The queen had fallen ill.

2. Why was the princess named "Princess Kemarau"?

- A) Because she was born during a time of drought.
- B) Because she brought rain to the kingdom.
- C) Because her mother gave her that name.
- D) Because her father wanted her to bring fortune.
- E) Because she was a famous warrior.

3. Who visited the palace and claimed that the drought could be ended by the princess's dreams?

- A) A seer
- B) A magician
- C) An astrologer
- D) A neighboring king
- E) A general

4. What did Princess Kemarau see in her dream?
 - A) A beautiful land with rain
 - B) Her mother telling her to sacrifice herself in the sea
 - C) A warning of war
 - D) Instructions to leave the kingdom
 - E) Her future as queen
5. How did the people react when it started to rain after the princess's sacrifice?
 - A) They were frightened.
 - B) They were angry.
 - C) They were joyful.
 - D) They were sad.
 - E) They were confused.
6. What happened to Princess Kemarau after she jumped into the ocean?
 - A) She drowned and was lost forever.
 - B) She was immediately saved by the king's guards.
 - C) She became a goddess of rain.
 - D) She returned as a queen.
 - E) She disappeared, but later appeared on a hill.
7. What was the king's reaction when he saw his daughter on the hill?
 - A) He was furious.
 - B) He ignored her.
 - C) He was confused.
 - D) He felt relieved and happy.
 - E) He was disappointed.
8. Which of the following best describes the character of Princess Kemarau?
 - A) Selfish and vain
 - B) Lazy and careless
 - C) Fearful and indecisive
 - D) Aggressive and angry
 - E) Brave and selfless
9. What was the purpose of Princess Kemarau's dream according to the story?
 - A) To instruct her to sacrifice herself for the kingdom's well-being
 - B) To warn her about the future
 - C) To encourage her to leave the kingdom
 - D) To tell her to find a hidden treasure
 - E) To inform her about a secret place
10. What is the likely moral lesson of the story of Princess Kemarau?
 - A) Hard work is the key to success.
 - B) Nature should be respected at all times.
 - C) Personal sacrifice can bring blessings to others.
 - D) Happiness comes from material wealth.
 - E) It is important to believe in prophecies