V. Read the following and do as directed.

The quality of our living environment plays an important role in our health and overall well-being. A clean and safe environment helps people live healthier and happier lives. Factors such as air quality, noise levels, water cleanliness, and green spaces all contribute to a good living environment.

In urban areas, air pollution and noise from traffic are two major concerns. Long-term exposure to pollution can lead to serious health problems like asthma or heart disease. Noise pollution, caused by cars, construction, and crowded neighborhoods, can also affect sleep and mental health.

Meanwhile, people living in rural areas often enjoy cleaner air and a quieter atmosphere. However, they may face other challenges such as limited access to hospitals, schools, and clean water sources. In some places, poor waste management also affects the living environment, leading to the spread of diseases.

To improve living conditions, communities and governments must work together. Planting trees, reducing pollution, improving waste management, and raising public awareness are all essential steps to protect the environment and ensure a better quality of life for everyone.

a. Decide whether the following sentences are True or False:

23. A good living environment can improve people's health and happiness.
24. People in cities usually have better air quality than those in the countryside.
25. Rural areas may have problems with access to healthcare and education.
26. The passage suggests that only individuals are responsible for protecting the environment.
