Ten facts about senses

1. There are five senses- sight, smell, touch, taste and hearing
2. Our senses help us to understand what's happening around us
3. Our senses send messages through receptor cells to our brain, using our nervous system to deliver those messages
4. There are four kinds of taste receptors on the tongue - bitter, sweet, salty, and sour
5. Some parts of the skin are more sensitive than others - this is because they have more receptor cells
6. We taste food using both our sense of taste and smell
7. It's fun to experiment with your senses - for example, make a chart of what foods taste bitter, sweet, salty, and sour
8. If you cup your hand around your ear, you'll hear more things - this is because you're helping your ear gather more sounds
9. Not everyone is able to use all five of their senses. If someone cannot see, they are blind; if someone cannot hear, they are deaf
10. We can use all five of our senses at the same time without even realizing it

6. How many senses do we have ...

Dear rani

How are you? I'm having an amazing time in Surabaya. It is the nicest city I've ever visited! There are so many things to see and do here. The streets are noisy but clean. There are also many shops here, but the prices are expensive. The hotel is very beautiful. I think Surabaya is good city to go to on vacation. I hope you can get a chance to come here one day.

See you soon ❤️
