Why I Help at Home

My name is Lisa, and I'm 13 years old. I live with my parents and my older brother. At our house, everyone helps with the chores — not because we have to, but because we care about each other.

I usually start my day by making my bed and helping prepare breakfast. My parents are often busy in the mornings, so I also feed our dog, Max, before going to school.

After school, my brother and I take turns doing different chores. For example, on Mondays I do the dishes, and he takes out the trash. On other days, we might vacuum the floor or hang the laundry.

Some of my friends think doing chores is boring, but I don't agree. I've learned how to cook simple meals and even fix small things around the house.

Last weekend, I helped my dad change a lightbulb and clean the garage. It was hard work, but we had fun doing it together. Helping at home has made me more responsible.

Questions:

36. Why does Lisa's family do house chores?
