XI. Read the following passage and mark the letter A, B, C or D on your answer sheet to indicate the correct answer to each of the following questions from 31 to 36.

There have been changes in family structure and values in Viet Nam because of industrialization and modernization. The Vietnamese family now exists in two major forms: nuclear families (two generations) and extended families (from three generations upwards). The nuclear family is the most common. The nuclear family now does not stand on its own, but it always receives support and assistance from wider families (parents, brothers and wider kin).

Major basic family relationships have changed positively. Modern values have been selected carefully while traditional values are preserved and developed. Children obey and respect their parents while maintaining their independent ideas and views. Parents respect their children's independence out of their love and indulgence. The relationship between grandparents and parents is also noticeable. Parents and grandparents tend to live together with their children and grandchildren. This traditional cultural feature distinguishes itself from that of modern western societies. Statistics show that the elderly play an important role in the family. At present, parents or grandparents living together with children or grandchildren has several advantages.

Social-educational role plays an important role in the Vietnamese family because it contributes to forming individual's personality. This issue receives particular attention from all family members. Many families invest time and money in caring for and educating their children while some parents regrettably cannot afford time to care for and educate their children.

Question 31. What is the main idea of the passage?

A. The negative effects of modernization on Vietnamese families

B. Changes in Vietnamese family structure and values over time

C. The differences between Vietnamese and Western families

Question 34. Which of the following is NOT true according to the passage?

A. The nuclear family is the most common family structure in Vietnam.

B. Grandparents no longer play an important role in the family.

C. Modern values are carefully selected while traditional values are still respected.

D. Some parents cannot afford time to care for and educate their children.

Question 35. According to the passage, how do Vietnamese families balance modern and traditional values?

LIVEWORKSHEETS

A. By carefully selecting modern values while preserving traditional ones
B. By replacing traditional values with modern ones
C. By encouraging children to be fully independent from their parents
D. By following only the practices of Western societies

Question 36. Why do many families invest time and money in caring for and educating their children?
