

What Do You See?

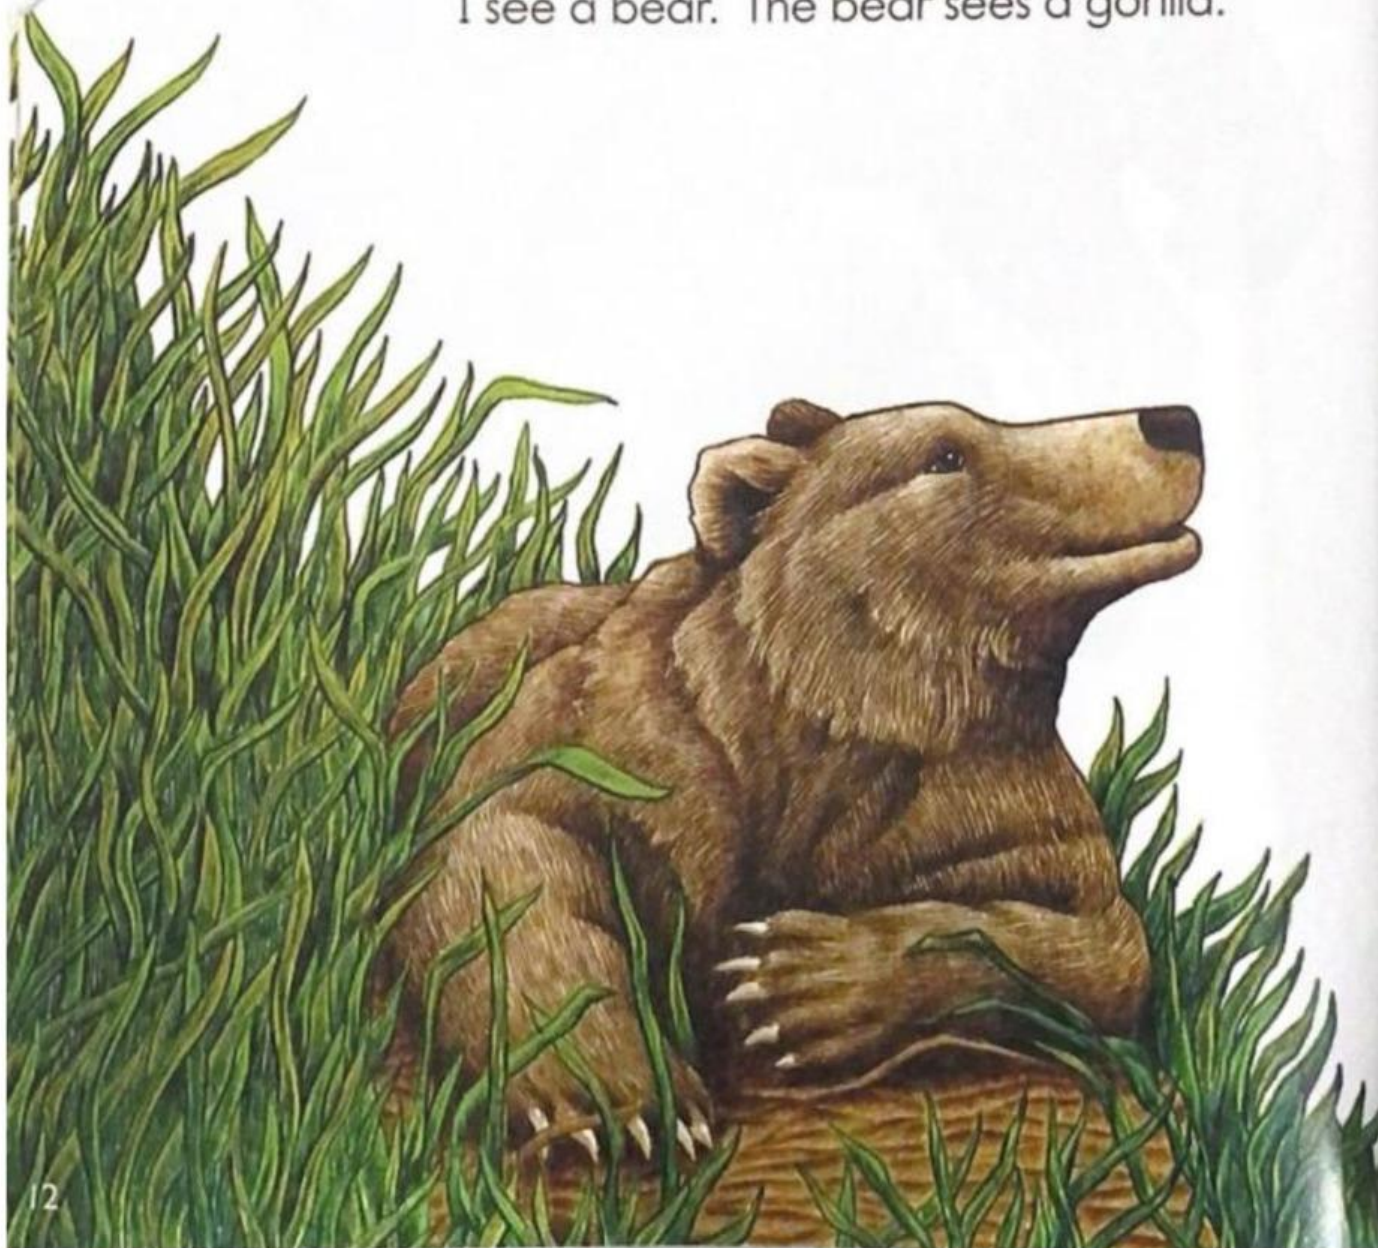

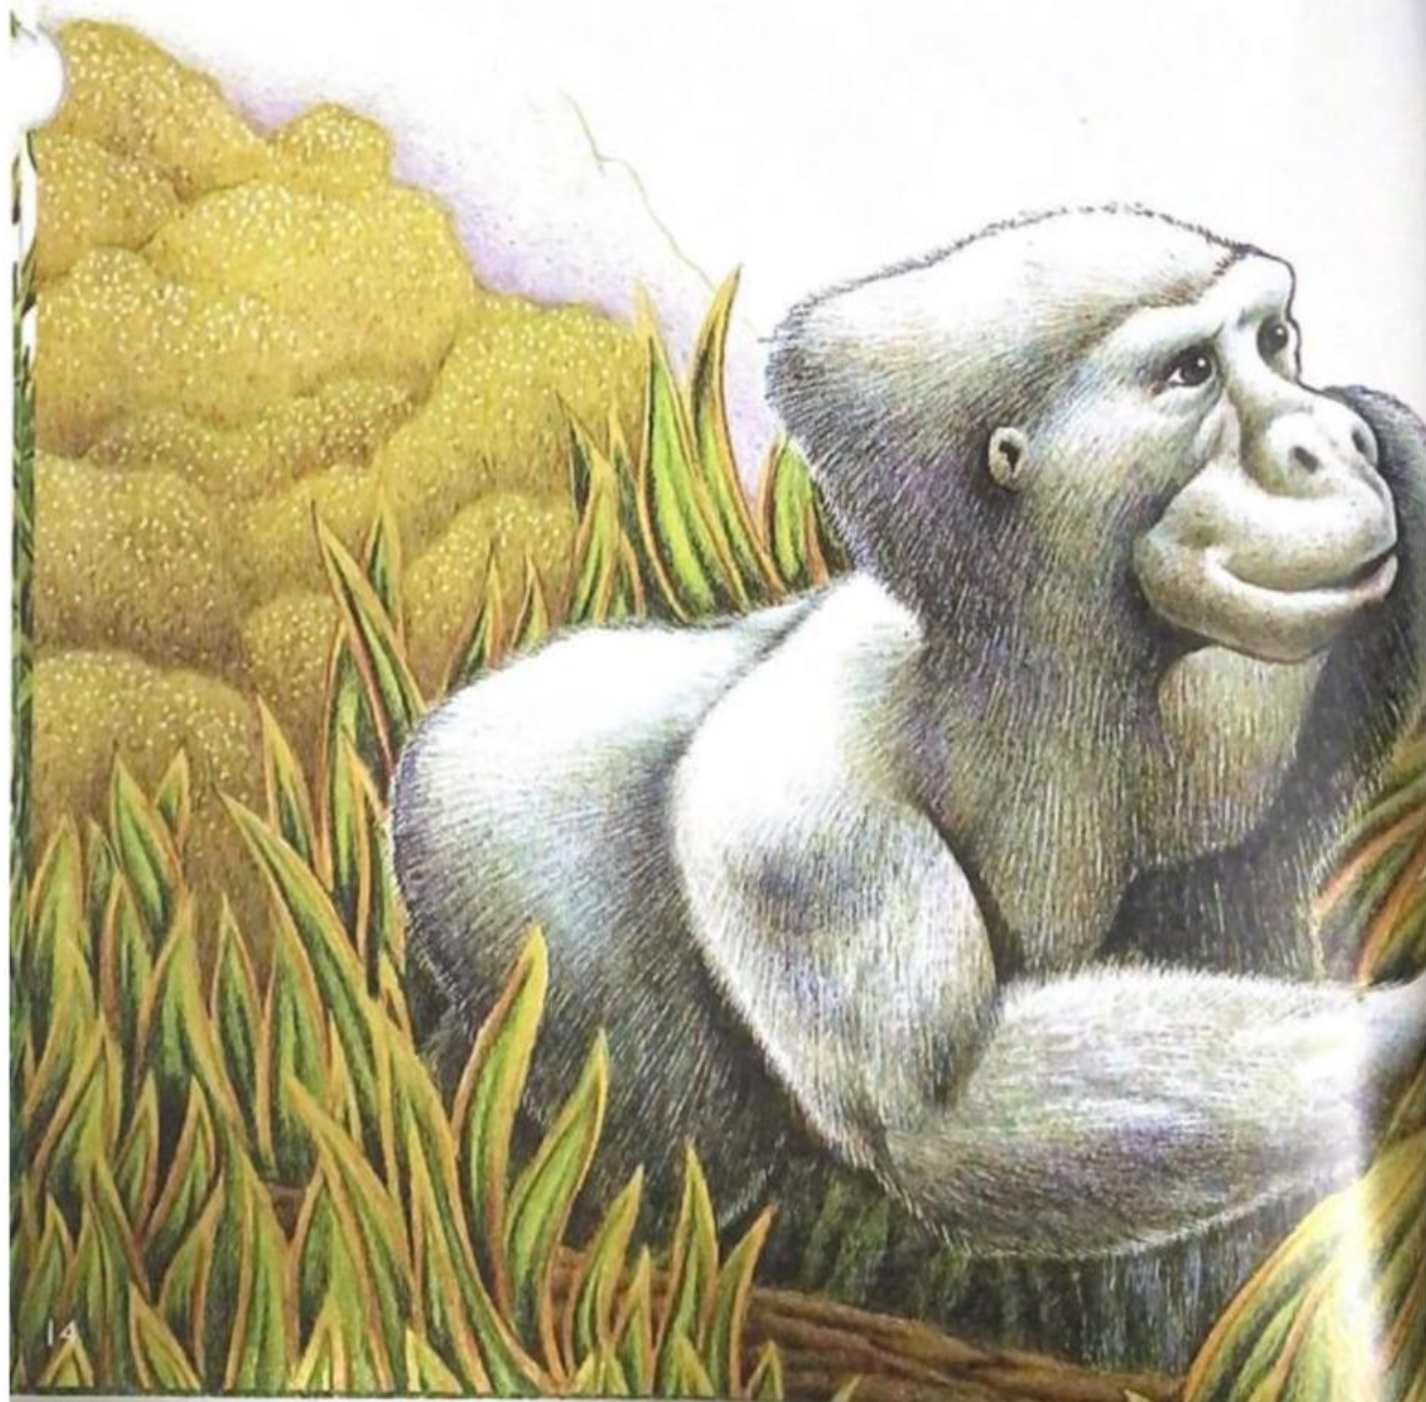

I see a panda. The panda sees a bear.

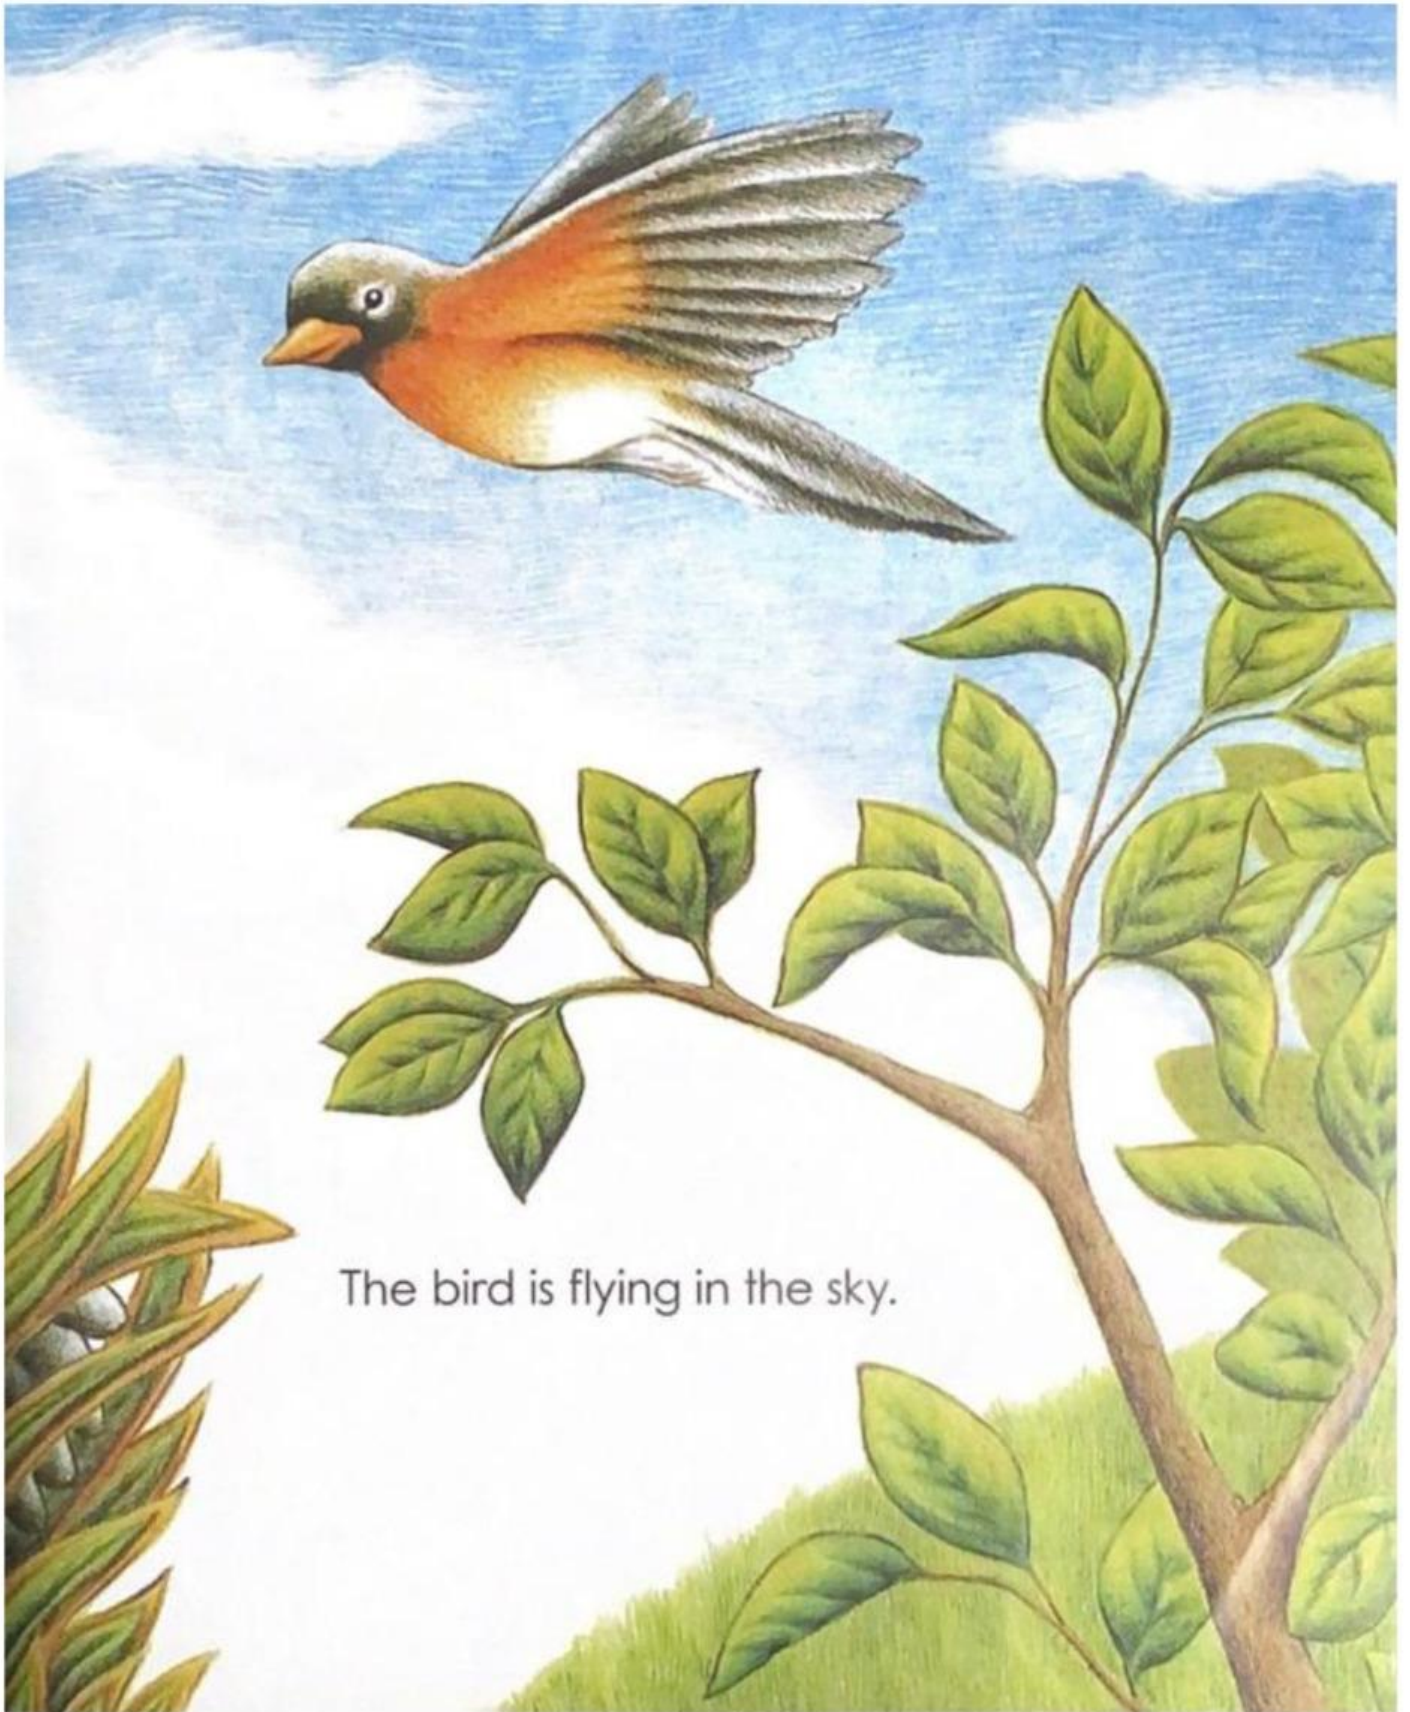

A detailed illustration of a giant panda sitting in a field of tall green grass. The panda is facing right, looking off-camera with a slight smile. It has its characteristic black and white fur, with black patches around its eyes, on its ears, and on its limbs. Its large black-furred paws are visible, with sharp claws. The background shows a soft, hilly landscape under a pale sky. The overall style is soft and painterly, typical of children's book illustrations.

I see a bear. The bear sees a gorilla.

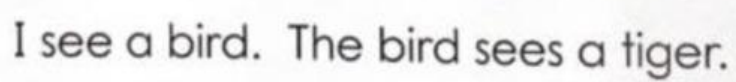

I see a gorilla. The gorilla sees a bird.

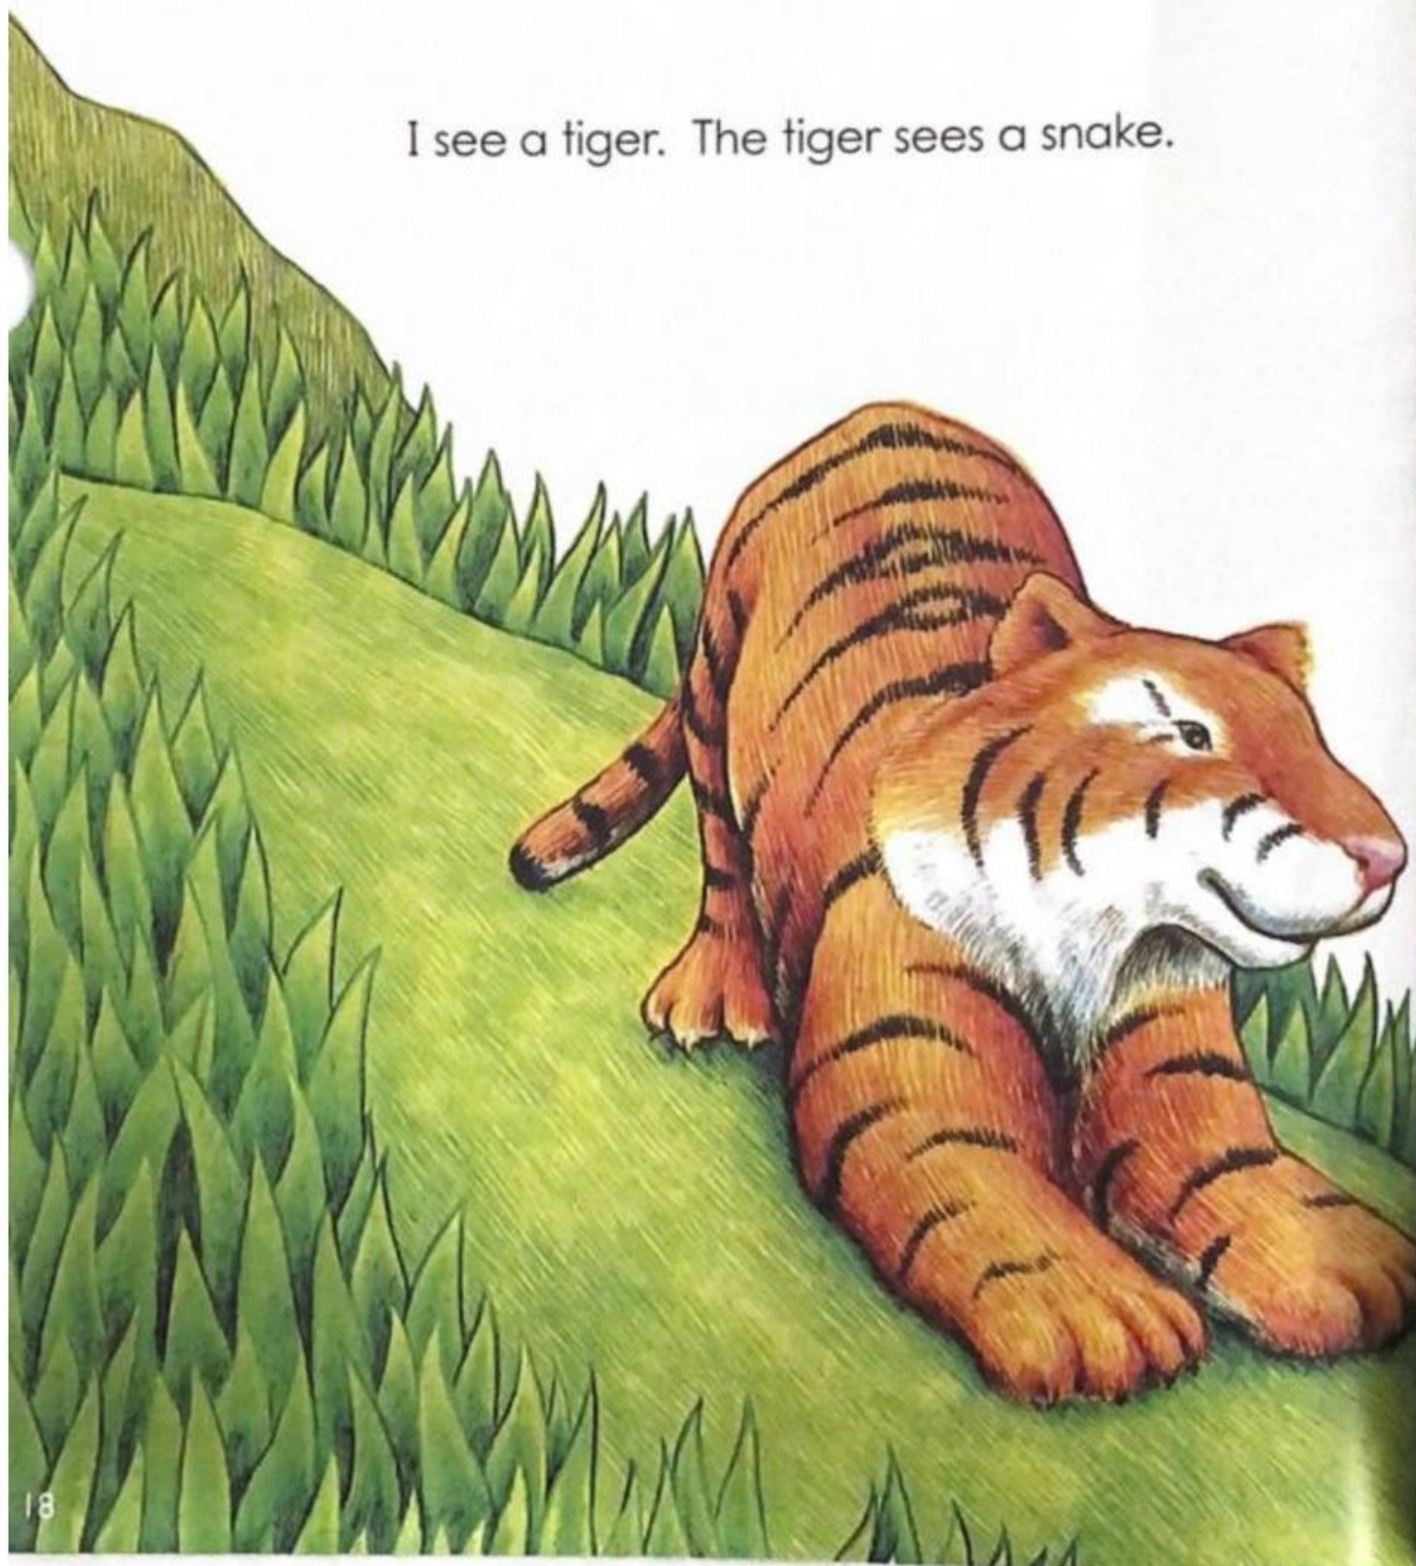

The bird is flying in the sky.

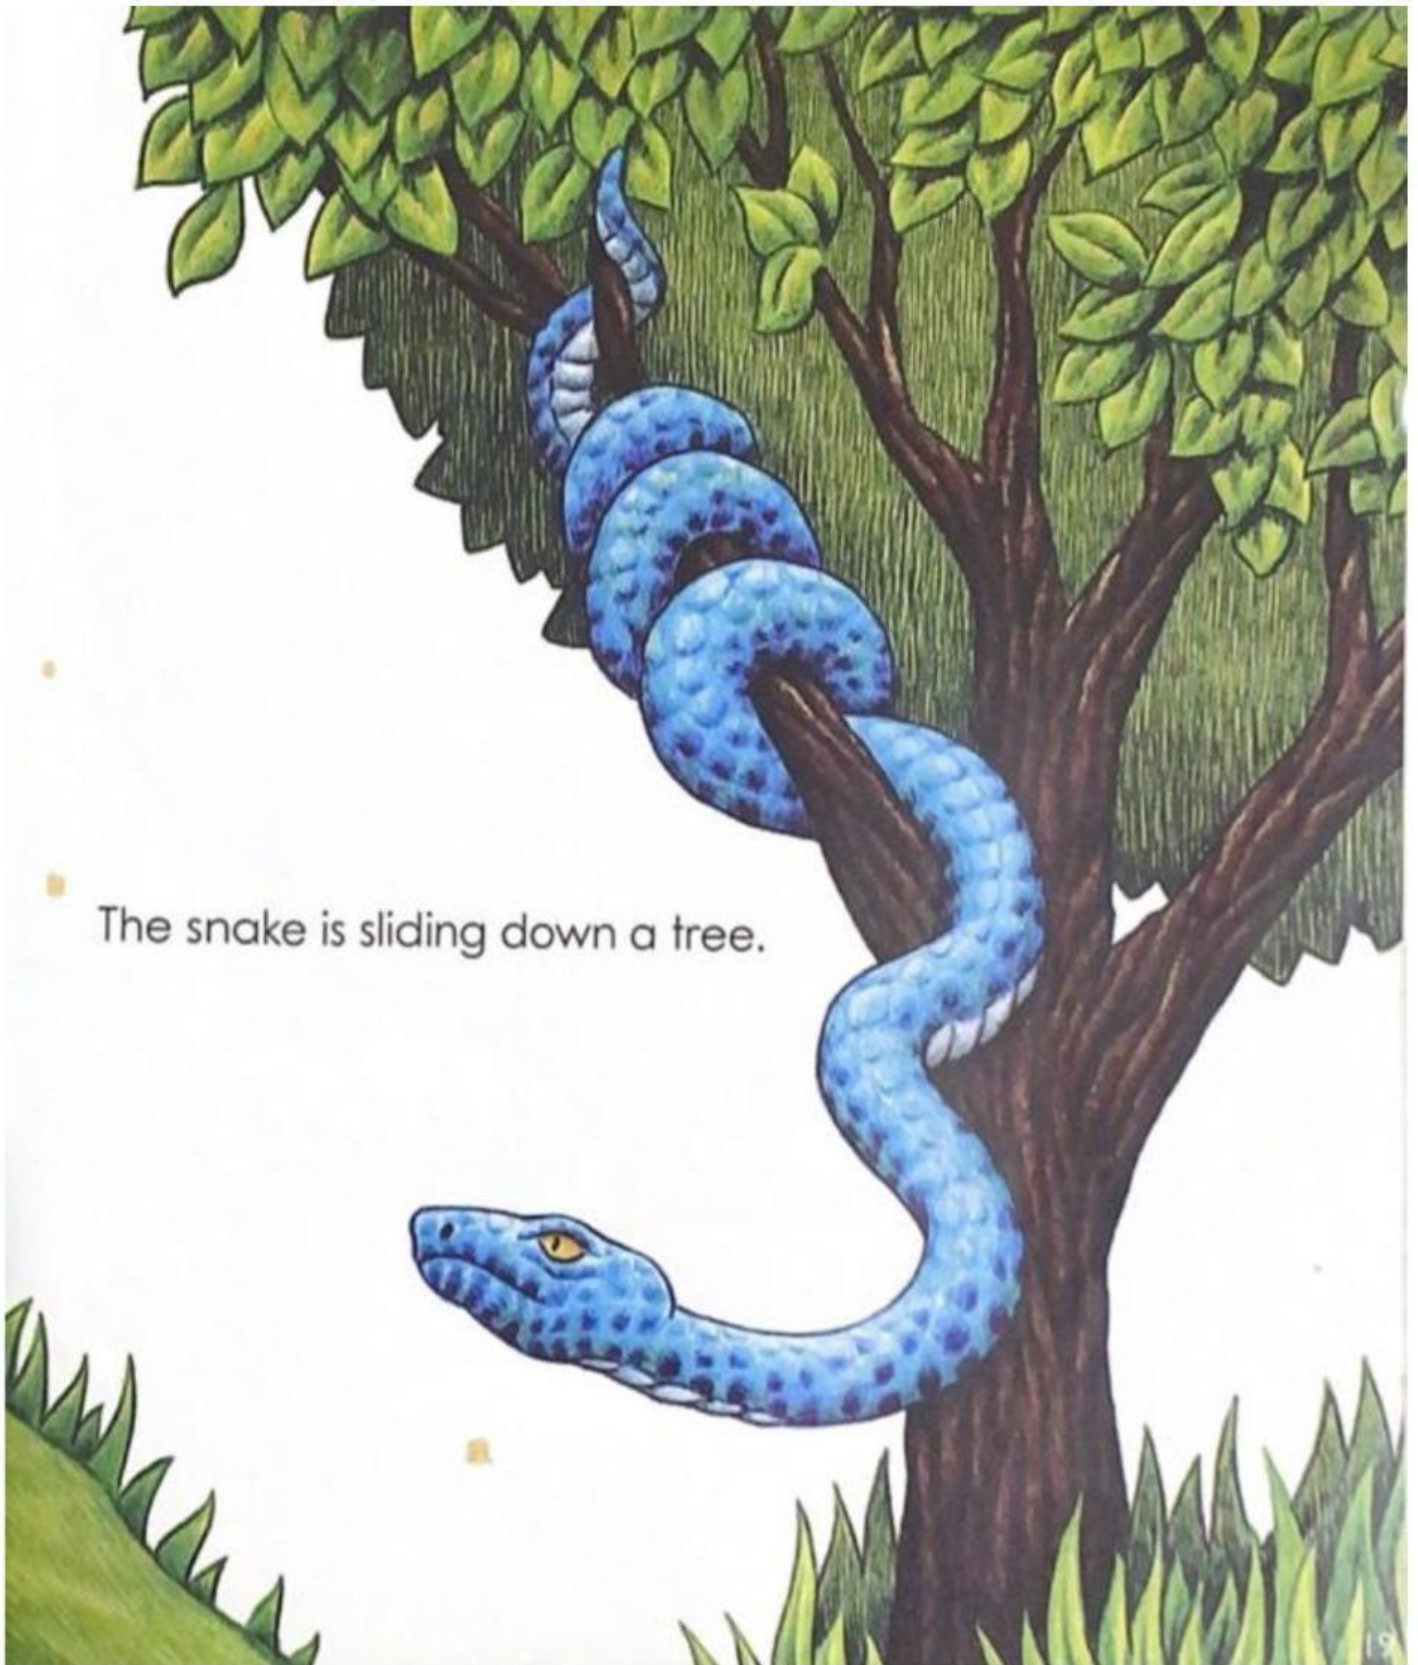

The tiger is running in the grass.

I see a tiger. The tiger sees a snake.

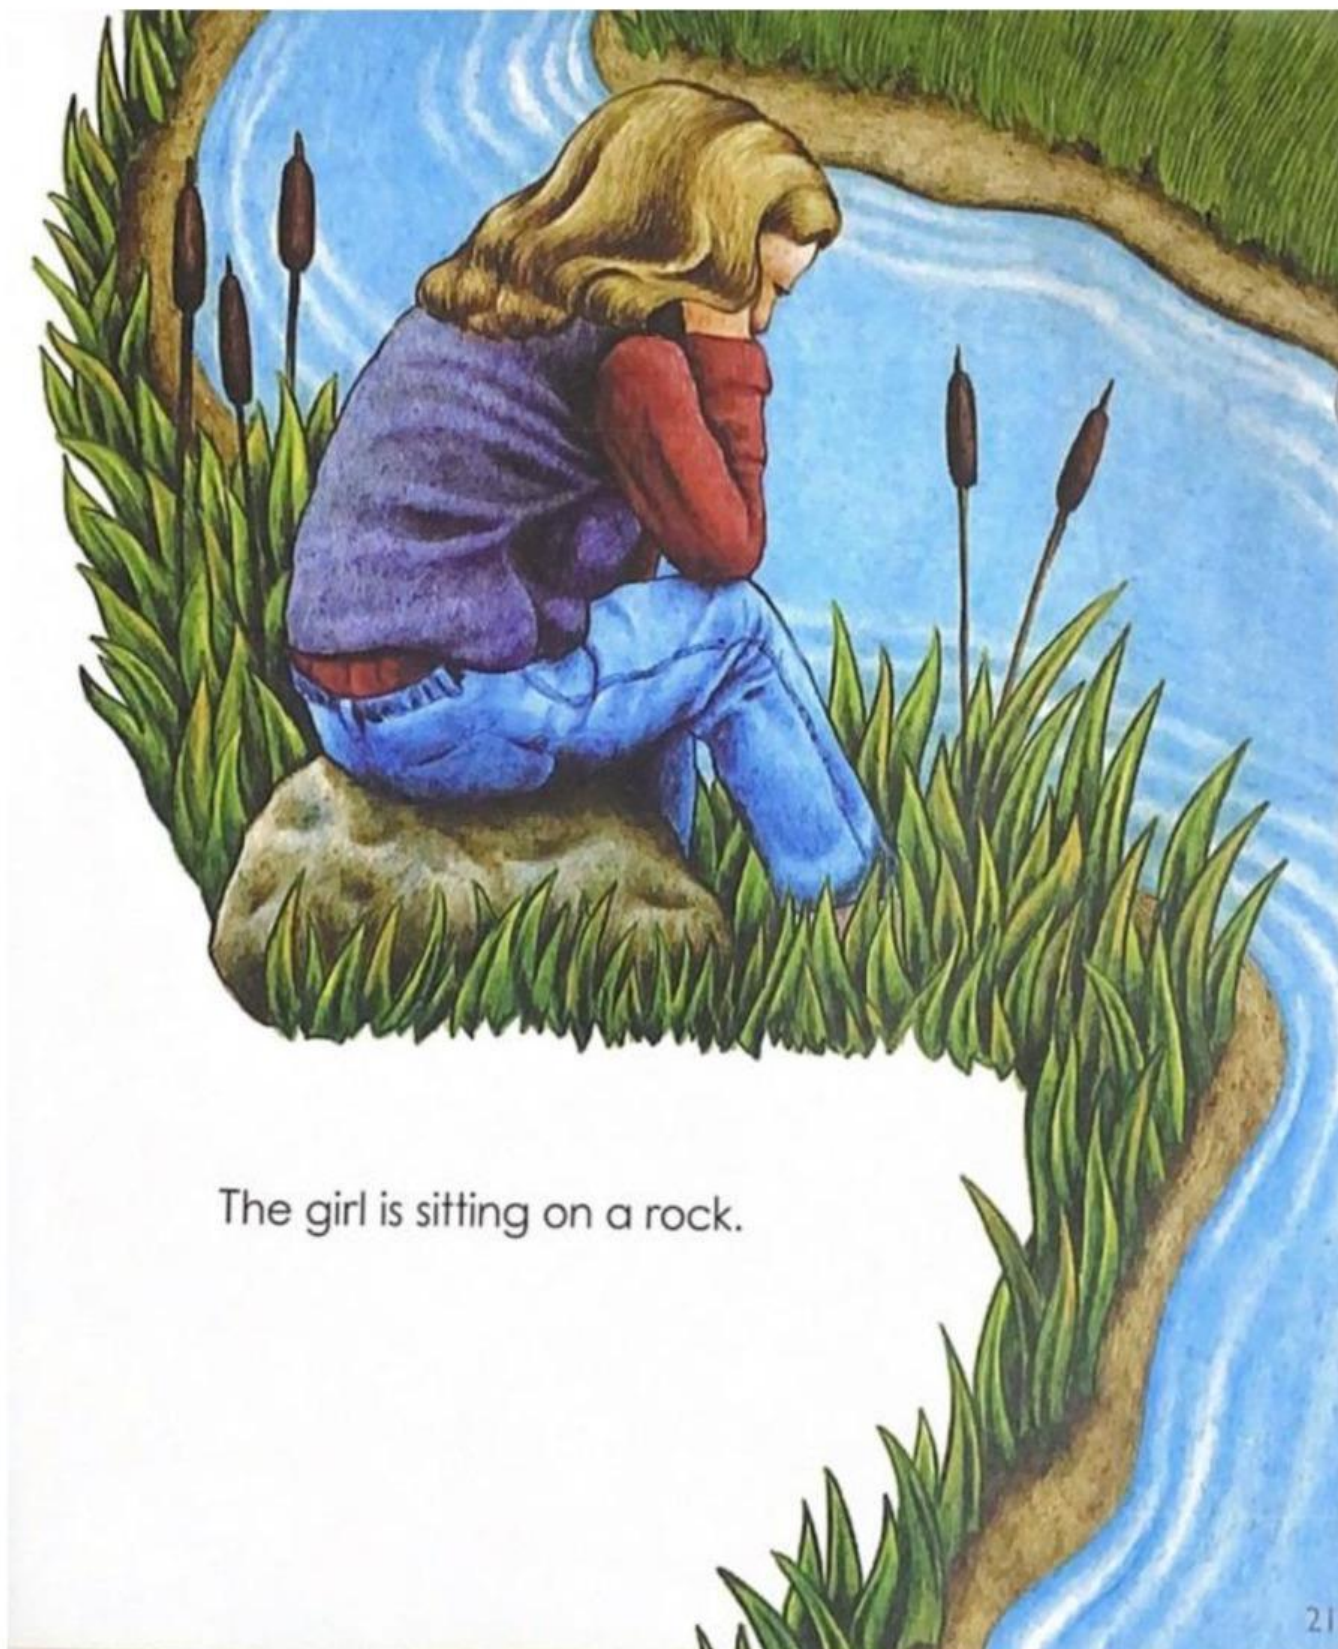

The snake is sliding down a tree.

I see a snake. The snake sees a girl.

The girl is sitting on a rock.

Little girl, little girl, what do you see?
I see a girl looking back at me!

A watercolor illustration of a young girl lying on her stomach on a grassy bank next to a pond. She is wearing a blue dress and white shoes with pink laces. She is looking back over her right shoulder towards the viewer. Several tall, brown cattail stalks with green leaves are in the foreground, partially obscuring the girl. The pond is in the bottom right corner, with blue water and brown earth visible. The page number '22' is in the bottom left corner.
