

Choom and Chon Visit the Bizarre Bazaar Vocabulary Matching

Match the spelling words with pictures, definitions, and quotes from Choom and Chon Visit the Bizarre Bazaar that show their meanings.

Word	Picture	Definition	Quote
bizarre
bazaar
steak
stake
thyme
time
weight
wait

Picture	Definition	Quote
	A small plant, or herb, used in cooking to add flavor and aroma to food.	That tall man is dyeing cloth with glowing dye that changes colors every few seconds!
	To stay where you are and not move until it is time; to delay action.	The tents that were not attached to the ground with wooden or metal posts began to blow away in the wind!
	A market, often outdoors, where people sell many different things.	I wonder what kind of meat it is.
	A stick you put in the ground to mark or hold something.	He will wait patiently until all the letters are ready to be sent.
	How long things take in seconds, minutes, or hours.	This bazaar is so strange but wonderfully magical.
	Very strange or odd.	An old man was struggling to lift a heavy box that seemed to be moving on its own.
	How heavy something is; the force of gravity on an object.	This strange and colorful market was full of unusual and fascinating things to see—things you couldn't find anywhere else!
	A thick piece of protein people eat, often made from beef.	I bet the cooks who were grilling that steak earlier buy herbs from her stall to season the food they prepare. That's why it smells so delicious!