

Today I'm going to talk about this is a topic that some of you might really like and some of you might not like it at all I've always been an person so I like sports when I was I played a ton of sports I tried playing almost all of the major sports during my childhood one of the first sports I played was you might not have heard of this sport before because it's only for I played t.....when I was like years old it's like baseball but After t-ball I started playing soccer in the US many children play soccer but not play soccer soccer isn't as in the US as it is in other countries I also playedwhen I was young out of all these sports my sport was I continued playing basketball and then I stopped I was pretty when I was young so I had anwhen I played the other kids were shorter than me I was the on my middle-school team this means that I could but when I was in high school the other kids grew and then I them so I easily anymore maybe I I played tennis a lot when I was young too my really likes tennis so when I was young I don't think I liked it that much when I started but later I began to like it more I was actually pretty good I took in played in some different tennis tournaments but I quit tennis because I was also when I was 16 I wanted to play football American football you might not know much about American football but it's probably the for men in the u.s. well I also really liked football and I wanted to play on my high school team I trained with them for but I wasn't thatabout it the team practiced a lot like and I that so in the end I I don't really play any sports anymore I honestly don't have to play sports and I don't have that I had when I was young
