☐ While-reading

Read the text carefully:

Nightmare on Mount Aconcagua

Last week a team of eight climbers climbed to the top of Mount Aconcagua in the Andes. However, while they were climbing down, something terrible happened. The weather changed.

'We were climbing down when I saw a snowstorm coming,' says Jim Thorne, the climb leader. 'It's every climber's nightmare'. He wanted to get his team back to base camp quickly but it was very difficult.'

'Everyone was tired and cold and was walking very slowly. Don't forget we were carrying backpacks', says Thorne.

They arrived at base camp two days later. 'When I saw base camp, I was very happy. When I looked back and saw that there were only six of us instead of eight, I couldn't believe it!' says Thorne. Unfortunately, Thorne and the others couldn't go back to find the two missing climbers because the snowstorm was very bad. 'Were they lost? Were they hurt? Were they alive or... dead? I didn't know. I just sat and cried,' says Thorne.
