

FRIENDSHIP - EMILY

1. What qualities do you think are most important in a good friend? Why?

In my opinion, a good friend listens, shares, and keeps secrets. Most importantly, they are sincere and make me feel respected.

2. Can you describe your best friend? How did you become friends?

Actually, she's slim, with long black hair always tied up. We first met when I was drawing comics and she was my reader. Since then, we've kept in touch and become close.

3. Do you think it's possible to have many close friends? Why or why not?

To be honest, not really. It's hard to build trust with many people at the same time. Personally, I don't feel close to people my age, but having a few older close friends would be great.

4. What is the best memory you have with a friend?

Honestly, I don't have many special memories with friends. I usually prefer spending time alone.

5. Have you ever had an argument with a close friend? How did you solve it?

No, never. We always understand and respect each other, so we haven't argued.

6. Do you prefer having a few close friends or many acquaintances? Why?

Personally, I prefer having many acquaintances because sometimes they can be helpful. But for me, one close friend is enough.

7. How can you tell if someone is a true friend?

For me, a true friend is sincere, listens carefully, and cares about my feelings.

8. Do you think friends should always agree with each other? Why or why not?

Of course not. Sometimes we disagree, but what matters is mutual respect.

9. How can friends influence your habits and lifestyle?

Yes, definitely. Older friends have given me new ideas, and as a result, I've become more mature in my way of thinking.

10. Do you believe it's possible to stay friends with someone who lives far away? Why or why not?

Yes, I do. My best friend and I haven't met for three years, but we're still in touch. Distance doesn't matter as long as both people value the friendship.

11. How has your idea of friendship changed as you have grown older?

Yes, a lot has changed. Now I don't feel like getting too close to anyone. In fact, it's the opposite of my old self, who used to welcome everyone as a close friend.

12. Can people of different ages be close friends? Give examples.

Of course, it's possible. For example, I know a writer who is over 27, but we still chat happily. However, I'm not sure I could be very close to someone with a big age gap.

13. Do you think online friendships can be as strong as face-to-face ones? Why or why not?

Yes, they can, if both people are sincere and make an effort. My best friend and I stayed close even without meeting for years.

14. How important is trust in a friendship?

In my opinion, trust is the most important part. Without it, the relationship can easily break.

15. Have you ever lost a friend? How did it happen?

Maybe I did, but honestly, I don't remember much because it was just a casual friend.

16. What role do friends play in making you feel happy and confident?

To be honest, I don't think friends play an important role in my life. For me, they are just there so I don't create conflicts with anyone.

17. How do you keep a friendship strong when you are busy?

Actually, I don't text much. My best friend respects me, and we never argue about small things. What's more, we don't force each other to chat all the time.

18. Can you be friends with someone who has very different opinions from you? Why or why not?

Yes, of course. As long as we respect each other and talk politely, I believe it's a good chance to learn new perspectives.

19. Do you think making friends is easier for children or adults? Why?

In my opinion, children make friends more easily because they are open and sincere. However, I prefer adults because their maturity attracts me.

20. In your opinion, can friendship last forever? Explain.

Definitely yes. If both people respect, stay patient, and make an effort, then the friendship can last a long time.
