Inverted conditionals - odd one out. Tick the two clauses that work, leave the one that doesn't.

If I hadn't gone shopping that day
Had I not gone shopping that day
Hadn't I gone shopping that day   I wouldn't have bought that dress.

Should a sales assistant be good at their job
If a sales assistant were good at their job   they will help you find what you need.
If a sales assistant is good at their job

                                                   if they buy a lottery ticket and don't win
People are always disappointed   when they buy a lottery ticket and don't win
                                                   if they bought a lottery ticket and didn't win

If I'd wanted to buy a new car
Should I have wanted to buy a new car   I would have to have saved a lot of money
Had I wanted to buy a new car

Had she not met her friend
Had she not to have met her friend   she wouldn't have gone shopping with Anna.
If they weren't friends

Should we happen to see anything on sale
Were we happened to see anything on sale   should we take a photo and send it to you?
Were we to happen to see anything on sale should we haven't left early this morning

The kids would be arguing by now   if we hadn't left early this morning had we not left early this morning

If everyone just shopped online
Were all shopping just done online   most physical shops would have to close.
If all shopping should be done online

If you had one week to live
Had you one week to live   what would you do?
Had you just found out that you'd die in a week