C. CAMBRIDGE READING PRACTICE

Part 6: You are going to read an article about a man who takes photos of celebrities. Six sentences have been removed from the article. Choose from the sentences A–G the one which fits each gap (37–42). There is one extra sentence which you do not need to use.

The airport photographer

I'm a photographer working at Heathrow Airport in London. Sometimes airlines hire me to take pictures of their planes or staff. But most of the time, I focus on taking photos of famous people as they arrive at the airport. I sell some photos directly to newspapers and celebrity magazines, and the rest I send to a photo agency.

On a normal day, I watch out for flights coming in from Los Angeles on the big airlines. (37) _____. Most of them either fly with British Airways because it's a well-known company, or with Virgin Atlantic because the owner, Richard Branson, is part of the celebrity world.

Of course, I have to watch all incoming flights. For example, Victoria Beckham once flew with Air New Zealand. I know the ground and security staff here very well. (38) _____. That can make a big difference in getting to the right place at the right time.

I've been doing this job for many years and have seen thousands of celebrities. In my opinion, the older stars are the nicest. Joan Collins is my favourite – she sends me a Christmas card every year. Mick Jagger also knows me and says hello. People like Paul McCartney and Rod Stewart are great fun. (39) _____. I guess that's because they can see the value of it.

Most modern celebrities are polite and smile at you, but some tell me to go away quite rudely. Sometimes their managers appear suddenly and say, "No pictures" to us photographers. (40) _____. You might have seen this kind of thing on TV when celebrities arrive at airports and wondered why photographers act so fast – well, that's the reason.

(41) _____. One time, Naomi Campbell refused to come out from behind a pillar. She called for an airport buggy and I had to run after it to try to get a picture. But the next time I saw her, she had just got engaged and came up to me to show me her ring.

Today's technology makes my job much easier than before. When I started, it was much more basic. I remember when the British Queen's granddaughters, Princesses Beatrice and Eugenie, were babies. I heard that their mother, the Duchess of York, was coming through Heathrow with them. She was carrying both babies in her arms. (42) _____. I realised I had a big chance of getting one of them onto the front page of the newspaper – which is always a photographer's dream.

I called my editor, took the photos, then rolled up the film, labelled it, put it in an envelope and got a motorbike courier to take it to the newspaper office. It took hours to get the photos developed. Today, using digital cameras and laptops, I can send the images in just three minutes.

Sentences:

- A. You get the impression that they enjoy the attention.
- B. I was lucky enough to get some lovely shots of them.
- C. Often it's one of them who tips me off that a big star has just come through passport control.
- D. That's where you generally find the celebrities.
- E. They could be appearing in the arrivals hall at any time, night or day, of course.
- F. When that happens, they have to do what we call 'duck and dive' to get a shot.
- G. With some stars, however, you're never quite sure what you're going to get.

PART 3 Questions 11-15

For each question, choose the correct answer.

My first safari by Jeremy Sanders

I had spent all night on a flight to Africa and I must admit I felt exhausted once I landed. The only thing that made me feel better was a smiling, tanned pilot who took us quickly through Customs. Life suddenly became a lot better when I realised that we wouldn't have to wait at all to catch our next flight. We were just about to board a much smaller plane this time, for our first African safari.

When you are on a short break every hour matters, so the fact that we were short-cutting the queues at Customs meant that we could be heading off to the countryside much sooner than anyone had expected.

Our second flight, the one from Nairobi, lasted less than an hour but was the most fascinating one I had ever been on. It took us out of the city until we reached Mount Kenya. There the view suddenly changed. Our pilot started flying lower, pointing out to the elephants, giraffes, gazelles and even rhinos as they ran beneath us. We did several rounds before reaching our final destination, Loisaba Lodge, where we landed.

Loisaba Wilderness is a 150sq km, privately-managed wildlife area of land kept in its natural state, especially for wild animals to live in and be protected. It is much larger than many of Kenya's parks and a safe place for more than 250 species of birds and 50 species of mammals, including elephants. The wildlife here, unlike in the game parks, is still wild, and so, far more exciting to see than bored lions lying in front of tourists.

We were soon taken to our rooms, located high up on a hill. From each of the seven rooms guests can walk out on to their private balcony to enjoy the wildly dramatic view - 61,000 acres of savannah and rocky area lie beneath you. A bit further away, you can observe, what I believe was the highlight of the visit, a watering hole, always drawing in animals for a drink. I'm telling you, it's just breathtaking; one cannot visit this place only once in their lifetime.

- B. Because he thought the pilot might not meet him.
- C. Because he expected the pilot to be unfriendly.
- D. Because he did not know where to go.

13. What does Jeremy say about the flight from Nairobi?

- A. It was far too long.
- B. The pilot flew in a dangerous way.
- C. They were followed by a smaller plane.

- A. It is still a safe and natural environment for animals.
- B. Tourists are no longer allowed there.
- C. Many of the animals are being hunted.

15. Which of the following might Jeremy write about his experience?

C. "Visiting Africa does not differ much from a day trip to the zoo. The conditions and animal facilities are almost the same."

D. "Unfortunately tourists are once again taking over beautiful Africa. They are ruining the landscape and threatening the animals' survival."

Part 6: You are going to read an article about a boxer. Six sentences have been removed from the article. Choose from the sentences A–G the one which fits each gap (37–42). There is one extra sentence which you do not need to use.

In defence of women's boxing

Lucy O'Connor thinks that women's boxing is often misunderstood.

Women's boxing is a fairly new sport in the Olympic Games. But according to Lucy O'Connor, who has won many international competitions, people still have the wrong idea about it – something she wants to change. After she finished school, Lucy started boxing because a sports coach told her it would be good for her overall fitness. But soon she became interested in competitions, and before long she was boxing in the National Championships – and she actually won.

Because of this success, Lucy was invited to join what is called the 'elite sportsman's programme'. (37) _____. Every day now starts with a run at 7 a.m., followed by either a skills and technique session or a strength and conditioning workout. In the afternoon, she does more aerobic training, then practises with other top boxers.

Like all boxers, Lucy also has to watch her diet carefully. Since she began boxing, she has lost 28 kilos. Getting down to the flyweight category was not easy and took a lot of effort. (38) _____. As she explains: 'I don't go out to parties anymore. Luckily, my husband – who used to be a heavyweight boxer – is my coach, so at least I get to spend time with him!'

Lucy's mother works as a buyer for a large department store, and Lucy has been trying out some products for the store's sports department. Recently, she wore a new set of sports clothes made from titanium, designed to help blood flow and speed up recovery. (39) _____. But how do her parents feel about her boxing? 'Mum prefers to watch from a distance, but Dad just loves it!' she says.

Lucy has answered safety questions many times. She talks about all the protective gear boxers wear: hand bandages, head guards, gum shields and more. 'Amateur boxing isn't dangerous,' she says firmly. 'The safety rules are so strict that it's actually hard to get injured. We see it more as a skills and point-scoring sport than as a fight. (40) _____. In boxing, you score points by landing punches on your opponent's upper body and head – but only in a clean and controlled way. Over five years of competing, Lucy has only had a few bruises and one broken thumb.

When people say it's wrong for women to box at the Olympics, Lucy quickly points out that women have taken part in other combat sports for years, like taekwondo and judo. (41) _____. One of the biggest misunderstandings, she says, is that people mix up amateur boxing with professional boxing, where the aim is to hurt the opponent. 'Women's amateur boxing is about skill, speed, and fitness,' she says. (42) _____. 'I really enjoy changing people's minds about it.'

Sentences:

- A. All that hard work certainly paid off and the competition itself brought out the best in Lucy.
- B. That's because in order to reach that target, she had to totally rethink her lifestyle.
- C. Having access to this space-age training kit was certainly an advantage.
- D. If the sport was more in the public eye, then fewer people would make that mistake.
- E. Nobody complained about women taking part in those events when it was introduced.
- F. That's why I've always regarded it as a thinking girl's sport really.
- G. What this meant, in effect, was that she was able to train full-time.
