DANGER AT HOME!

HOME | STORIES | PHOTOS

1 BURNS

You probably think that the most dangerous room in the house is the kitchen, but in fact most accidents happen in the living room! Small children can get serious burns from hot drinks or open fires. Candles are also the cause of many accidents in the living room – a candle near a curtain can start a horrible house fire!

2 DO NOT EAT OR DRINK!

Many people go to hospital after getting poisoned, especially young children. Do you sometimes paint your bedroom? When you finish painting a wall, put the paints in a safe place so that young children don't try to drink them. Medicines, too, should be in a top bathroom cupboard – they shouldn't be easy for kids to get.

3 THING UP NOSES

This is a surprising, but common, accident. Young children often put the strangest things up their noses: frozen peas, crayons, chips … . They think it's funny, but it can be serious. These things get stuck and it sometimes needs a hospital visit to get them out.

4 FALLS

Falling is the most common accident in the home. Be careful! climbing up a ladder to get something down from a high shelf can be very risky. This happens most often to people over 65 and kids under 15. And remember: young children mustn't play near open windows – 4,000 children fall out of them every year in the UK, so watch out.
