Cultural Exchange in Japan

Last summer, our school organized a cultural exchange trip to Japan. On the first day, our teacher, Ms. Laura, reminded us about the rules for traveling in a group. She told us to keep our passports safe at all times and asked us not to talk too loudly in public places. Everyone nodded and promised to follow the rules.

When we arrived at the hotel, the receptionist asked us to fill in the registration forms carefully. Some of us had trouble writing our addresses in English, so Ms. Laura patiently helped. Later, during the welcome dinner, one of the Japanese students suggested that we try the traditional sushi. Although some of us had never eaten raw fish before, we were curious and decided to give it a try.

The next morning, our tour guide, Mr. Tanaka, ordered us to meet at the lobby by 8:00 a.m. He also asked everyone to bring a bottle of water because the weather was very hot. Before leaving, Ms. Laura suggested that we visit the local temple first since it was less crowded in the morning.

While walking to the temple, a shop owner asked if we wanted to see some handmade souvenirs. We spent a few minutes looking at his beautiful crafts. One student even bought a hand-painted fan. At the temple, a monk asked us to remove our shoes before entering and suggested that we take a moment to meditate. The peaceful atmosphere made everyone feel calm and relaxed.

On the last day, Mr. Tanaka asked whether we had enjoyed our trip. We all replied happily that it had been one of the best experiences of our lives. Ms. Laura suggested that we write about our journey in the school magazine so others could learn from our cultural exchange.
