3 Circle the correct options in the text.

It seems that (1) cooking / to cook is a dying art in our society. A recent survey indicated that most families cook a meal from scratch less than twice a week, preferring (2) to purchase / purchasing ready meals or use the vast range of takeaway services now available to them. Young people are now less likely to be taught (3) to cook / cooking by their parents, and many are unable (4) preparing / to prepare the simplest meals by themselves. This does not necessarily mean that people dislike (5) cooking / to cook. Its decline is at least partly down to people's increasingly busy lives. That, together with all the ways (6) obtaining / to obtain food quickly, means that it's no longer a skill that everyone wants (7) mastering / to master. However, I believe that people who do not cook are missing out on the pleasure that (8) preparing / to prepare your own meals can bring. For me, it is an opportunity to relax and leave the day behind, even though so many people just (9) to turn / turn on the television. My friends are always surprised (10) hearing / to hear that I haven't order a takeaway for over a year!
