1. They do both. Many people smile, cheer, and clap with the rhythm. Sometimes they even dance in the street with the performers.
2. Amazing! And what about Monday? What makes the Grand Parade of Fantasy Dance Groups different from the Sunday parade?
3. Yes, Tuesday is symbolic. Joselito represents the Carnival itself. People cry and weep dramatically to say goodbye. The Queen wears black to symbolize mourning. But everyone also laughs, because Joselito always comes back next year.
4. Well, On Sunday we have another wonderful event: Grand Parade of Tradition and Folklore. Groups perform traditional dances, wear colorful costumes, and showcase folkloric music, celebrating their cultural roots.
5. That sounds fantastic! What kind of traditional dances do they perform, and how do the costumes represent the culture of Barranquilla?
