

The Creative Painter

Sofia was a young artist who lived in a small studio in the city. Her walls were covered with drawings, and her desk was full of brushes and paints. It didn't look very practical, but for her it was the most suitable space to be creative.

Every morning, she experimented with colors. She knew that if you mix red and blue, you get purple. Sometimes the results were simple, but other times she created something truly unique.

One day, she was invited to show her work at a gallery. She thought, "If I paint something impressive, people will remember me". So she worked hard on a new canvas. The picture showed a gorgeous garden full of flowers that didn't exist in real life. It looked so fascinating that even she couldn't stop staring at it.

At the gallery, her painting stood between two very sensible portraits. People walked past them quickly, but they stopped at Sofia's canvas. Everyone agreed it was incredible, and some even said it was the most sophisticated work in the room.

Sofia smiled and thought, "If I were more confident, I would tell everyone about the story behind this picture". Still, she felt proud. The night was truly unforgettable, and she finally believed in her own talent.
