

READING COMPREHENSION

SHOULD AND MUST

AT THE SCHOOL

Reading Passage: Good and Bad Habits at School

At school, students must follow certain rules to create a safe and respectful environment. For example, they must arrive on time, wear their uniform properly, and listen to their teachers. These are important habits that help everyone learn better.

There are also habits that students should develop to be successful. They should do their homework every day, help their classmates, and keep their classroom clean. These habits are not strict rules, but they show responsibility and kindness.

However, some students have bad habits. Some talk during class, forget their homework, or use their phones when they shouldn't. These habits can affect their learning and disturb others. Students must not be disrespectful, bully other classmates or ignore school rules.

To be a good student, you must respect others and should always try your best. Good habits help you grow, and bad habits can hold you back

1. What are three things students must do at school?

- _____
- _____
- _____

2. What are two good habits students should have?

- _____
- _____

3. Choose the bad habits that affect learning.

Talking during class

Forgetting homework

Being respectful

Ignoring school rules

Listening to teachers

Doing homework every day,

Using phones in class without permission.

4. What is the difference between must and should in the text?

Should

expresses an obligation or rule that students are required to follow.

Expresses abilities that students should develop at the school

Must

gives advice or recommendations that help students be responsible and kind.

5. Organize the sentences

•

•

•

•

•