ACTIVITY 1

TOBA LAKE

A long time ago, in the northern part of Sumatra, there lived a poor but kind young farmer named Toba. He spent most of his time working hard in the fields to survive. One day, he went fishing in a nearby river, hoping to catch something for his meal.

After waiting for a long time, Toba finally caught a big and beautiful golden fish.

However, to his great surprise, the fish suddenly spoke to him. It begged him not to kill it. A moment later, the fish magically transformed into a beautiful young woman. She told Toba that she was under a curse and could only be freed if he promised never to reveal her true identity to anyone. Amazed and enchanted by her beauty, Toba agreed and later married her. Years passed, and they were blessed with a son. The boy was active but also very lazy and often made mistakes. One day, when his mother asked him to deliver food to his father, he carelessly ate most of it before arriving at the fields. When Toba saw this, he became furious and, without thinking, shouted angrily, "You son of a fish!"

The boy was shocked and ran home crying.

LANJUTAN

When his mother heard what had happened, she realized that Toba had broken his promise. Feeling betrayed, she told her son to run to the mountains for safety. Soon after, the sky darkened, lightning struck, and heavy rain fell endlessly. The land where the village stood was flooded, and it became a huge lake.

The mother disappeared into the water, returning to her true form as a fish. The father, Toba, was swept away by the flood. Their son survived on the high ground and grew up to become the ancestor of the Batak people. The lake formed from the flood is known today as Lake Toba, the largest lake in Indonesia.
