1 Underline the most suitable form of the verbs.

To:	Mark
Co:	Jo
Subject:	Trip

Why don't you come with us to Yorkshire? It's all arranged. Jo comes/is coming (1) to my house at six so we can go to the station together. The train doesn't leave/isn't leaving (2) until 6.45 but we don't want to be late. It stops/is stopping (3) a lot on the way so it doesn't arrive/isn't arriving (4) until three in the afternoon. We stay/are staying (5) in a youth hostel and we spend/are spending (6) five days there. We can catch a bus some of the way from the station but it doesn't go/isn't going (7) all the way so we have to walk the last two miles from the village. We have/are having (8) breakfast and our evening meal at the youth hostel. It's in a beautiful spot with lots to see. On the way back we need to set off early as there's only one bus and it leaves/is leaving (9) at 8.30. The train back is faster so it arrives/is arriving (10) just after lunch.

2 Fill in the gaps with the present continuous or the will-future of the verb in brackets.

- Tim: Where are you going?
Julie: To the cinema.
Tim: Wait for me. I think I will come (come) with you.
- From next week all enquiries should be sent to Mary because Frances will leave (leave) on Friday.

SCHOOL'S OUT

You've finished school, passed those vital exams and got a place waiting for you at university in the autumn. What are you going to do for the next ten weeks? Prize magazine asked five girls who've just finished school about their plans for the summer.

A Angie Hook has got it all sorted. 'I'm going to be pretty busy. First I've got to get some money, because I know I won't have enough when I'm a student, and the course I'm going to follow is really demanding, so I won't be able to take a part-time job in term time. So I've signed up with a company as a temporary secretary for most of the summer. Luckily, I'm good on a word processor and I did the same sort of thing in previous years, so I've got a bit of experience behind me, which is a big help. I am going to have a break though. Just before the university term starts I'm going to have a fortnight in Spain with some of the people who've just left school with me. My mum and dad are giving me the money for that as a reward for doing well in my exams, so I won't have to use up my savings, which is really nice of them, because I know it means they'll have less to spend on their own holiday.'

B Sally Price is less certain about her plans. 'I'm definitely going to have to work before I do anything else, because I'm so short of cash. I want to go away for a holiday somewhere by the sea, and I'll have to earn enough for that, so I've got to look for a temporary job first. I think I'll find something fairly quickly. After that, it'll be too late to find any more work I expect, because other people will have taken all the jobs by then, so I'll just have a month hanging about at home, messing around with my friends and things, spending time with my parents. That'll be good really, because I'm going to be a long way from home when I'm at university and I won't see them much.'

C Tracy Chadwick says she has little choice about what to do. 'I have to spend the last month of the summer break getting ready for my course. I've got a job in a shop for the first month until I go on my holiday. That will give my brain a rest and pay for the holiday. But I've already had this enormous reading list from the university, so as soon as I've had a couple of weeks' holiday, I'm going to settle down and get on with studying, because I don't want to be behind at the beginning of term.'

D Polly Targett would like to work. 'But the thing is, we live such a long way from town and I don't have my own car yet – I'm going to get one next year, for my birthday, but it's rather difficult to get anywhere at the moment. Well, there's a bus, early in the morning and I think there's one in the evening, but to be honest it's much easier to stay at home. I doubt whether I'll go away, because I've already been on holiday with my parents earlier in the year and anyway I'll have to do some studying before the term starts, because otherwise I'll just have to work so hard when I get to university there won't be time to enjoy myself with my friends.'

E Hilary Lee is going to start with a break. 'I'm really exhausted after all our school exams and stuff and so I'm going to have a fortnight with my parents, just relaxing completely. We're going somewhere abroad, but I don't know where, it's a surprise, a sort of present, because I've done well. I know it'll be lovely. Then I'll find a job, it doesn't matter what, just so that I can have some pocket money for the rest of the year. It won't be hard to get something, in a hotel or whatever, summer's the high season for businesses in this area. Then I'll spend a couple of weeks doing nothing much, I hope, perhaps I'll paint my bedroom or something. And that'll be it – summer'll be over. I'll be a university student.'
