Questions 41 – 45

Read the text and questions below.
For each question, circle the correct letter A, B, C or D.

Searching for music

My name's Daniel and I'm a DJ. I'm always looking for different types of music, and one of the styles I particularly enjoy playing is over thirty years old now. It comes from Africa, and it's called 'Afrobeat'.

For a DJ, it's great music – lively with a heavy beat that's ideal for getting people onto the dance floor. However, when I first got into it, getting hold of Afrobeat wasn't easy. It was mostly recorded on plastic vinyl records, and since then, the technology for recording and playing music has changed completely. As a result, most old Afrobeat albums have been thrown out or forgotten about, packed away in garages and spare rooms.

Searching the internet was little help; it was as if Afrobeat had disappeared. I tried placing ads in newspapers instead and eventually located some vinyl records belonging to an African musician. He let me have them, and I persuaded a record company to produce a few of the tracks digitally, having first made sure the artists who had written and performed the music would get a share of the profits. As far as I'm concerned, it's bringing an old style back to life that's important, rather than making money for myself.

I search for unusual songs as part of my work as a DJ and because it's fun. But the real pleasure comes from seeing people dance to a type of music they've never even heard of before, from every part of the world. And, of course, some of that music is on old vinyl records. So, if your parents or grandparents have any at home that you think are just old rubbish, have a listen to them and maybe you'll change your mind!

41 What is Daniel's main purpose in writing the article?
