The Mystery of the Mary Celeste

On November 7, 1872, a ship called Mary Celeste left New York on its way to Genoa, Italy. It was not a passenger ship, so the only people on it were the captain, his wife, their child, and a crew of seven. However, the Mary Celeste never reached Italy. On December 4, an Italian ship, the Dei Gratia, sailed very close to the Mary Celeste, and its crew noticed that something was wrong. The Mary Celeste wasn't sailing. It was floating in the ocean. The captain and crew of the Dei Gratia thought there might have been a problem, so they called out to the Mary Celeste, but no one answered.

The captain and crew of the Dei Gratia boarded the Mary Celeste, but they didn't find anyone. They searched the ship but still couldn't find anyone. They found food on the table in the captain's room. It must have been for the captain and his family, but it hadn't been eaten. In addition, the captain's money and personal papers were on his desk, and his wife's jewelry was still in her bedroom. In the rooms for the crew, it was a similar situation. In fact, one of the crew had started writing a letter to his wife, but it remained unfinished.

The people on the Mary Celeste must have left the ship, but to this day, no one knows for sure what happened to them.
