

“The Forgotten Portal”

Finn had woken up very early that morning because he had felt a strange vibration under his bed. When he got up, he realized that Jake had already disappeared. The Tree Fort was unusually quiet; Finn had never experienced such silence before.

He quickly grabbed his golden sword and rushed outside. The sky had suddenly turned green, and the air smelled like burnt sugar. Finn remembered that Princess Bubblegum had just warned them the night before about unstable magical portals.

When he reached the Candy Kingdom, he discovered that several citizens had already vanished without a trace. Peppermint Butler, who had bravely remained at the gates, explained that a portal had opened near the Gumball Forest.

Finn ran toward the forest and found Jake stuck in glowing candy vines. Jake said he had followed a mysterious humming sound and had been trapped before he could escape. He had never seen vines move by themselves.

Finn carefully cut the vines and helped Jake stand. Together, they approached the portal, which had almost collapsed. Just then, a shadowy figure appeared inside. It was The Lich.

But before it could step out, the portal had already begun to explode inward. Finn and Jake instantly jumped back. With a final roar, the portal vanished completely.

Back at the Tree Fort, Jake admitted that he hadn't listened to Princess Bubblegum when she told him to stay away from strange sounds. Finn sighed but laughed. They knew this adventure had only just begun.
