

5 We have to hurry!

Have to
The imperative
Why and because

Have to and the imperative

I have to you have to he has to she has to we have to you have to they have to turn left

We use have to + base form when we talk about something that we must do.

It's late. We have to leave now.

We often use have to when we give directions to someone.

You have to go left at the traffic lights.

The past simple form is had to + base form.

They had to go over the bridge.

When giving directions, we often use the imperative. This is a more direct form of giving an instruction than have to.

Turn left. Go over the bridge.

We often use at when we talk about where we have to turn or stop.
Stop at the traffic lights. Go straight on at the roundabout.

You have to go straight on for the Science Museum.

1 Look at the list of jobs. Write sentences with the correct form of have to.

- 1 Jamie has to help Dad in the garden.
- 2 _____

Why and because

We use why when we want to ask about a reason or cause.

We use because when we explain a reason or cause.

Why are you late? Because there was a lot of traffic.

Why do you eat so quickly? Because I'm always hungry!
