Finding Balance Beyond the Screen

Many teenagers today find it almost impossible to spend a day (1) _____ using their phones. They check messages, watch videos, and play games almost constantly. However, this behaviour often increases their stress (2) _____ of reducing it. Studies show that people who spend more than four hours a day online are more (3) _____ to feel anxious and lonely.

One reason is that social media often shows only the best moments of others' lives. This can make teens believe that their own life isn't exciting (4) _____, which damages (5) _____ self-esteem. Another issue is the lack (6) _____ sleep caused by late-night screen use. Looking at bright screens before bed makes it difficult for the brain to relax.

Fortunately, there are plenty of ways to improve your mental health without abandoning technology completely. Activities such (7) _____ drawing, cooking, or playing an instrument help your mind focus on the present. Physical exercise, especially outdoors, can do wonders (8) _____ your mood by releasing endorphins.

It's also important to spend time with family or friends (9) _____ person. Sharing your feelings or simply laughing together can reduce anxiety more effectively (10) _____ scrolling online. You don't need to change everything at once, but taking small steps, such as setting screen-free hours, can make a real (11) _____ over time. Remember, balance is not about perfection, it's about (12) _____ choices that make you feel good inside and out.
