Lety: Hello! Is Alex there?

Alex: Hi, this is Alex. What a nice surprise!

Lety: I wonder if you _____ tonight, I know an excellent restaurant very close to your place.

Alex: Yes, of course. I _____ there with you! Get ready, I'll be there in one hour.

Lety: I'll be waiting for you, Alex. I _____ their specialty.

Alex: Me too, I'm starving. See you in one hour!

2. Read next dialogue and change the underlined sentences into negative form.

Lety and Alex are in a restaurant. The waiter arrives and they start to order.

Waiter: Good night, lady and gentleman. Would you like to order right now?

Lety: Sure. I want to have your specialty, clam chowder soup, and a baked potato with broccoli.

Alex: I would like to have the same soup, but I want a T-bone steak with smashed potatoes, please!

Waiter: What term would you like to have your steak, sir?

Alex: I want it medium term, please!

Waiter: Do you want to order any drinks?

Lety: I want to have a lemon soda, please.

Alex: Me too, I would like to have the same.

Waiter: I will be back soon with your order.

Dear Ann,

We moved into our new home a few days ago, and I would like to invite you to a celebration dinner here at 7pm on March 4th. Please ring me on 0438862245 to let me know if you are able to come. I look forward to showing you round the house, and introducing you to some of my other friends.

Yours sincerely

Sara Johnson

How to Invite Someone: A Five-Step Guide

Study the following Guide and examples, then pick a card and act out the situation with a partner.

Step 1

When you want to invite someone, you'd better ask them whether they are interested in your suggestion. It seems a good idea to find out about their interests because you can be disappointed easily: e.g. it is not worth the time and effort to invite a vegetarian to a sausage dinner. Some suggestions for starting:

-  Have you seen the new exhibition at the art gallery?
-  Have you been to the new Chinese restaurant in the main street?
-  Do you like swimming?
-  Can you play chess?
-  Are you interested in techno music?

Step 2

If you get a positive response, you should ask them whether they are free at a particular time. Why waste your time offering a ticket to a Saturday night concert to someone who has planned to do something else on that night.

-  Are you doing anything on Saturday night?
-  Are you free tomorrow evening?
-  Have you got any plans for the weekend?
-  What are your plans for Friday afternoon?
-  Are you planning to do anything in the morning?
-  What are you going to do on Tuesday morning?

Step 3

Hopefully they haven't got any plans, so now you can come up with that brilliant idea of yours and invite them:

-  Would you like to see the exhibition of modern arts?
-  Do you fancy having lunch there and going shopping afterwards?
-  What about going for a swim in the afternoon?
-  How about meeting up after school?
-  Shall we play chess on Saturday evening?
-  Let's go to a concert at the weekend.
-  Why don't we go out tonight?

Step 4

Even after being so tentative you can expect two kinds of responses:

Accepting an Invitation

-  Yes, I'd love to.
-  That sounds a great idea.
-  Yes, let's.
-  OK, let's.
-  I wouldn't miss it for anything.

Refusing an Invitation

-  Sorry I can't. You know I have a headache.
-  I can't I'm afraid. You see I feel tired.
-  I'd rather not. In fact, I'm on a diet.
-  That sounds great but I can't because
-  I'm really sorry but I can't make it because ...

Step 5

If your invitation has been rejected you can go on suggesting another time or another activity by returning to Step 1, or you can give up and say something like:

If you are lucky enough and they have accepted your invitation, just go on to fix a date (time, place):

-  Great! Let's meet at 4 at my place.
-  Cool! I'll pick you up after school.
-  When and where shall we meet?
-  What about meeting at 8 outside the club?

-  What a pity! Another time perhaps.
-  I'm so sorry. It would have been so good to spend some time together.
-  Then I have to ask someone else.

Role Play Cards
