A Day in the Life of an Online Student

Before the pandemic, Lisa used to go to her university every day. She spent hours in the library, met friends for lunch, and attended classes on campus. But when all her courses moved online, her routine changed completely.

Now, Lisa studies from her bedroom. She wakes up at 7:30, turns on her laptop, and joins her first class at 8 o'clock. She says she enjoys learning at home because she can study in comfortable clothes and doesn't need to travel. However, she sometimes finds it difficult to concentrate. Her younger brother often plays video games loudly, and her Internet connection is not always stable.

To stay focused, Lisa has created a schedule. She takes short breaks between classes, goes for a walk in the afternoon, and avoids social media while studying. She also meets her friends online every weekend to discuss assignments and share ideas.

Lisa believes that online learning has taught her to be more independent and organized. Still, she hopes to return to campus soon, because she misses the energy of face-to-face classes and being around other students.
