The Space Explorer

My name is Zara Moonlight, and I used to be a space explorer. When I was young, I dreamed of flying among the stars, so I trained very hard to join the Galaxy Crew.

Every morning on the spaceship, I woke up to the sound of humming engines. First, I checked the control room to make sure everything was working. Then, I joined my team for breakfast. We usually ate fruit bars, hot tea, and sometimes dried strawberries.

After breakfast, I inspected our solar panels. I always made sure they were clean so the ship had enough energy. In the afternoon, I often taught new explorers how to use the space suits. They were heavy, but the students learned quickly.

At night, I liked to sit near the window and watch the planets shine. I wrote in my digital diary about the places we visited and the strange creatures we sometimes saw.

I sometimes missed Earth, especially trees and fresh air, but when I looked at the stars, I remembered why I loved exploring — there was always something new out there.
