My Unexpected Trip to Europe

Last month, I decided to travel _____(1) Germany after receiving a scholarship _____(2) a short cultural program. I departed _____(3) Bangkok early in the morning and arrived _____(4) Berlin nearly 12 hours later. Even though I was tired, I quickly checked _____(5) my hotel, which was located _____(6) a busy avenue filled _____(7) cafés and bookstores.

The next day, I joined a workshop _____(8) international students _____(9) different countries. We discussed how culture influences communication and shared stories _____(10) our experiences living abroad.

One afternoon, I walked _____(11) the riverbank and crossed _____(12) a wooden bridge to visit a small museum. I wasn't very familiar _____(13) the city, so I traveled mostly _____(14) tram to avoid getting lost.

_____(15) the end of the trip, I felt more confident traveling alone and learned how important it is to be open-minded when visiting a new country.