A Glimpse of My Father's Strength

Last week, something happened that changed the way I see my father. He has always been a cheerful man at home—cracking jokes, helping me with homework, and making sure our family is happy. I knew he worked as a street sweeper, but I never really understood what that meant. To me, he was just my father, always smiling and full of energy.

One scorching afternoon, I was walking home from school when I saw a man sweeping the street under the blazing sun. His shirt was soaked with sweat, and his face looked tired. As I got closer, I realized—it was my father. I stood there, frozen. I watched him bend down, pick up trash, and sweep the dust without stopping. His movements were steady, and despite the heat, he didn't complain. I had never seen him like that before. At home, he never showed any sign of exhaustion. He always looked happy in front of us, as if his job was easy.

That moment opened my eyes. I finally understood how hard my father works every day to support our family. He hides his tiredness behind his smile, just to make sure we feel loved and cared for. I am proud of him—not just because of what he does, but because of the strength and love he shows us every single day.
