Lewis's Holiday

I travelled with my family to St Ives in the south-west of England for a weekend in the summer. We had an amazing time and we saw many awesome sights.

We arrived in St Ives on a Friday afternoon. It was a long journey from Doncaster on the train – almost eight and a half hours. We arrived just after six o'clock, so we were all tired, but we felt much better when we saw our room – it was really cool.

On the first night, we ate at a restaurant near the hotel. My meal was excellent. I don't eat fish very often but I wanted to try it because we were near the sea. It was delicious. The only problem was that the restaurant was really busy and there weren't enough waiters.

The next day, my mum wanted to visit an art gallery. I wanted to get an ice cream, but we had to go to the art gallery first. It was boring! In the afternoon, we planned to go on a boat trip, but it was raining so we went back to the hotel.

Sunday was the best part of the trip because I had a surfing lesson. Surfing is quite difficult and not as easy as it looks. By the end of the lesson, I could stand on the board for a short time. I hope I can try it again one day! Have you tried surfing?
