Reading

Online schools – anytime, anywhere!

My name's Hayley and my family and I are on a year-long trip around South America.

Me and my brother study at an online secondary school. We have eight school subjects and I do an extra course in photography. Classes start at 9.00 am and finish at 1.00 pm on school days. Now we're in Peru, so our classes start at 3.00 pm UK time. I've got four lessons each day and teachers also record them. I watch them on the days when we travel. Each subject has two lessons each week. In the first lesson, we listen and make notes on the topic. We see the teacher on the screen and send questions. In the next class, we do practice activities in groups and get our homework for the week.

On our trip, we learn about the history of places and we learn Spanish from the people we meet. We cook food from the different countries we visit. I write about all these things in my own blog about the trip. I also give presentations in class about my experiences. My parents are happy with our school, but not when we don't have an internet connection! They see that travelling teaches us a lot, too.

I've got lots of online friends in different places. It's not possible for me to meet them at a park or go to a party, but we have a virtual after-school club. We talk about our experiences of where we live, our culture and hobbies. I love my online school!
