READING COMPREHENSION

Write one to three sentences to summarize this short paragraph.

During the final week of school, students in Mr. Rivera's class prepared for a school science fair. They talked about different topics they could explore and decided to focus on simple experiments that showed everyday science. Over the next few days, they gathered materials like paper cups, magnets, baking soda and vinegar, and they practiced explaining their results in clear steps. Some students stayed after school to make neat posters and help classmates organize their tables. On the day of the fair, families and teachers walked around the room, asked questions, and clapped for the presenters. The students felt nervous at first, but why ended the day proud of their hard work.
