"Is it a bird? Is it a plane? No, it's a jetpod!

by nicole andrews

Fed up of sitting in traffic in (0) the morning rush hour? Well, for London's tired workers this may no longer be (1) ..... problem.

(2) ..... a few years, 'flying taxis' or 'Jetpods' may be a common sight in the skies of London. Commuters can park (3) ..... cars at a 'Park-and-fly' site and catch one of these miniature planes to work. Around 4-6 minutes later, the planes will land on short runways in central London. The runways could be above rivers, railway stations (4) ..... roads.

The inventors of the 'Jetpod' say (5) ..... a 'Jetpod' test flight could take place very soon. Each plane can carry 7 passengers and will probably cost about £15 one way (6) ..... each passenger. It is quiet and environmentally friendly and will take about 37,000 cars off the road.

So what (7) ..... London commuters think of the 'Jetpod'? Well, Ken Williams, businessman in the City of London, thinks it's a great idea. 'This (8) ..... exactly what London needs,' he says. 'I will definitely be first in the queue when the 'Jetpod' starts!'
