UNIT 3

MUSIC

Read the text and answer the questions.

Music has been an important part of human life for thousands of years. From ancient drums to modern digital recordings, people have used music to express emotions, tell stories, and bring communities together. Today, music exists in many different styles, such as classical, jazz, pop, rock, and hip-hop. Famous composers like Ludwig van Beethoven created symphonies that are still performed around the world. In contrast, modern artists such as Taylor Swift write songs that often reflect personal experiences and current social issues.

Music can influence how we feel. For example, fast and upbeat songs can make us feel energetic and happy, while slow melodies can create a calm or even sad mood. Scientists have discovered that listening to music can reduce stress and improve concentration. Many students listen to music while studying because it helps them focus.

Technology has changed the way we enjoy music. In the past, people bought CDs or listened to the radio. Now, streaming platforms allow users to access millions of songs instantly. This easy access has helped musicians reach global audiences more quickly than ever before.

In addition, music plays an important role in cultural identity. Traditional songs are passed down from generation to generation, helping people remember their history and values. Whether performed at celebrations, concerts, or family gatherings, music continues to connect people across different cultures and ages.
