Unit 7: Vietnam and International Organisations

Vietnam has become an active and responsible member of many international organisations over the past several decades. After joining the United Nations in 1977, Vietnam began to strengthen its cooperation with countries around the world. Membership in global and regional organisations has helped Vietnam develop its economy, improve education, and increase its role in international affairs.

One of the most important organisations Vietnam joined is the Association of Southeast Asian Nations (ASEAN) in 1995. Through ASEAN, Vietnam works closely with neighboring countries to promote peace, stability, and economic growth in Southeast Asia. Vietnam also became a member of the World Trade Organization (WTO) in 2007. Joining the WTO allowed Vietnam to expand trade, attract foreign investment, and create more job opportunities for its people.

In addition, Vietnam cooperates with financial institutions such as the World Bank and the International Monetary Fund (IMF). These organisations provide financial support and advice to help Vietnam reduce poverty and develop infrastructure.

By participating in international organisations, Vietnam shows its commitment to global cooperation. The country has also sent peacekeeping forces to support United Nations missions. Today, Vietnam continues to play an important role in solving global issues such as climate change, public health, and sustainable development.
