

1

- A: Excuse me. Haven't we met before?
B: No, sorry. You don't look familiar.
A: Isn't your name Deborah?
B: That's my sister. We look alike. I'm Susan.
A: I'm Gwen. Deborah and I used to work together at Westhill Secondary School. By the way, how is she? I haven't seen her for ages.
B: She's great. She hasn't changed much. She's still a Maths teacher.
A: Tell her I said hello.
B: Sure. I'm sorry, I didn't catch your name.
A: Gwen Fisher.
B: OK, Gwen. This is my floor. It was nice talking to you. Bye.

2

- C: Do you mind if I join you? There aren't any tables available.
D: No, go ahead.
C: I'm Francesca.
D: Jessica. Nice to meet you. What do you do?
C: I'm a hairdresser. I have got my own salon on Garner Street.
D: Really? I go past there almost every day. How's business?
C: It could be better. What about you?
D: I'm unemployed. I graduated last year, but I haven't found a job yet.
C: Good luck with that. It's not easy at the moment.
D: Tell me about it. I've already been to three interviews this week and nothing.

3

- E: Steve! Long time no see!
F: Hello, Ken. Good to see you again.
E: How long has it been since we last saw each other?
F: I think it was at your brother's barbecue.
E: That was a year ago.
F: Yeah. So, how have you been? Are you still working at that art gallery?
E: No, I work at the National Museum now. I've been there since March.
F: Oh, here comes the A19. Got to go. Give me a call sometime, OK?

Read the dialogues again and answer the questions. Write A-F.

1. Which two people know a relative of the other person?
2. Who is looking for a job?
3. Which two people haven't seen each other for a year?
4. Who looks like someone else?
5. Who wishes the other person success for the future?
6. Who asks about another person?
7. Who has recently changed jobs?
8. Who thought the other person was someone else?

☐	☐
☐
☐	☐
☐
☐
☐
☐
☐	