PART 5: ANSWER QUESTIONS 21 TO 23

Read the text and choose the correct answer (A, B, or C).

The Silent Hero

While Neil Armstrong and Buzz Aldrin were walking on the moon, Michael Collins was orbiting alone. Before the mission started, he had trained for months to handle the command module. He knew that if something went wrong, the other two would be lost forever. Interestingly, by the time the moonwalk ended, Collins had completed several orbits around the moon in total silence. He felt calm because he had prepared for the solitude.

C. Because he had lost his keys.

PART 6: ANSWER QUESTIONS 24 TO 25

Read the text and choose the best answer (A, B, C, or D).

A Psychological Victory

The success of the Apollo 11 mission was a turning point. Before 1969, many skeptics had doubted that human technology could survive the vacuum of space. The Cold War had pushed both the USA and the USSR to their limits, turning a scientific journey into a race for prestige. By the time the astronauts returned, the world had realized that international competition could lead to progress, even if the motives were political. The moon landing proved that once a goal is set, humans can overcome barriers that they had previously thought were impossible.

24. What can be inferred about the world before 1969?
A. Everyone believed space travel was easy.
B. Technology was considered insufficient for space by many.
C. The USSR had already won the race.
D. People didn't care about the moon.

25. According to the text, what was the "Space Race"?
A. A friendly game between countries.
B. A competition driven by Cold War politics.
C. A way to find new fuel for cars.
D. A scientific mission with no political interest.
