Hi, everyone! I'm taking my final exams in high school next week, but I'm not feeling very confident! If I don't get the grades I'm hoping for, I'll rethink my plans. I may take some time off and do some volunteer work, or I might go traveling ... or I may try to take the exams again. What about you? What are your plans for the next few years?

I'm in the middle of my final exams. I want to be a lawyer and I've applied for law school. I know it's going to be difficult, but I feel like my exams have gone well so far—I've done three already. But it's hard to say for sure until I get all my grades! If my grades aren't good enough, I'll definitely take my exams again, even if I have to repeat the year.

I'm taking a year off at the moment, before I start university. First I went traveling for three months and now I'm doing volunteer work in the north of Canada. I've met some great people, but I'll have to say goodbye to them soon because I'm starting at the University of Toronto in October. I was really happy when I got the grades that I needed last year. And I'm excited about moving to Toronto!

My dream is to work with animals, so I've applied to do an apprenticeship at the local veterinary clinic. If they accept me, I'll start this summer. I enjoy school, but I'm ready to start working and earning my own money. I'll live at home with my parents at first, but if it goes well, I hope I'll be able to leave home in a few years and get my own place.
