A New Journey

I have previously found pleasure in occasional walks, but never in a million years did I imagine that I'd end up walking over 200 kilometers in 10 days, or become a fan of walking holidays. And most surprisingly, I found myself developing self-guided hiking routes in Portugal with a local tour operator as part of my business.

My journey from being content with three-hour walks to becoming an experienced hiker began with a brief introduction to the world of hiking. It all started when my friends invited me to join them on a weekend hike in a local nature reserve. Little did I know that this outing would create this passion within me for exploring the great outdoors on foot.

Back in 2013, I had the opportunity to participate in a guided single-day hike along one of the most beautiful sections of the Camino, located north of Ponte de Lima. Although it was one of the most challenging parts, due to the steep and rocky ground, the breathtaking scenery from the top of Labruja Mountain made the climb worthwhile.

The guides accompanying us were incredibly enthusiastic for the sense of achievement that comes from reaching the majestic mountain peak after facing the daily challenges of the Camino. This spirit inspired me to consider going through this adventure, despite lacking any special motivations. Apart from suffering the continuous back pain, I thought I was quite fit. But nothing had prepared me for how exhausted I would feel at the end of each walking day.

Quickly, I realized the moral of this unique travel experience. The Camino was all about making the most of the journey rather than the destination. We met people who had walked the Camino several times and I can totally understand how it can become addictive.

7 What was the author's initial attitude towards hiking?

- (a) eager to be experienced.
- (b) satisfied with short walks.
- (c) aware of what's coming up.
- (d) excited to be a nature explorer.

8 What made the climb to Labruja Mountain rewarding?

- (a) The beautiful parts of the Camino.
- (b) The opportunity to join other hikers.
- (c) The chance to explore Ponte de.
- (d) The stunning scenery after hard effort.

9 What did the guides inspire the writer to bear in mind?

- (a) overcoming physical illness.
- (b) reaching the top of the mountain.
- (c) experiencing daily challenges of the Camino.
- (d) trying new things despite lacking the motive.

10 What lesson did the writer learn from the Camino experience?

(a) The importance of reaching the destination.

(b) The challenges of self-guided hiking.

(c) The significance of the journey itself.

(d) The Camino is a one-time experience.
