Body Structure and Functions

Our body is made up of many important parts that work together to keep us healthy. The brain helps us think and control everything we do. Our heart beats to send blood to all parts of the body. We have lungs to help us breathe, taking in oxygen from the air. Our ribs protect the organs inside our body. The backbone, or spine, holds our body up and lets us stand tall. The upper arm connects the shoulder to the elbow and helps us move our arms. Our skin covers the body and keeps it safe from the outside.

The body also has functions that keep us alive. When we breathe, we take in air and give out carbon dioxide. The pulse is the beating of the heart, which we can feel on our wrist or neck. We need to take care of these body parts to stay healthy.

0. The brain helps us breathe and control everything we do. False
