Read the following passage and mark the letter A, B, C, or D on your answer sheet to indicate the correct answer to each of the following questions from 31 to 36.

In today's globalized world, the English language has evolved beyond its traditional boundaries, giving rise to a diverse array of "World Englishes."These regional varieties of English, shaped by the unique cultural, historical, and social influences of different parts of the world, have become an integral part of the linguistic landscape.

One of the most notable examples of World Englishes is Indian English, which has developed its own distinct grammatical structures, vocabulary, and pronunciation patterns. Influenced by the languages and dialects of the Indian subcontinent, Indian English has become a vibrant and dynamic form of the language, used not only in formal settings but also in everyday communication.

The rise of World Englishes has challenged the traditional notion of a single, "standard" form of the language, prompting a shift in our understanding of linguistic diversity. Rather than viewing these regional variations as "inferior" or "incorrect," linguists and language experts are increasingly recognizing the value of these diverse forms of English.

By embracing the richness of World Englishes, we can gain a deeper appreciation for the cultural and linguistic picture that makes up the global English-speaking community. This recognition of linguistic diversity not only fosters greater intercultural understanding but also celebrates the inherent adaptability and dynamism of the English language itself.

Question 31. What does the word Englishes mean in paragraph 1?

A. speakers of English
B. regional varieties of English
C. English people
D. English-speaking countries

Answer 31: _____

Question 32. What characteristic of Indian English is mentioned in the essay?

A. Unique grammatical structures
B. Formal vocabulary
C. Standardized pronunciation
D. Standard form of the language
