Brad and Erica like to go shopping on the weekends. They don't like the mall, though. It's too big and crowded, and the salespeople aren't friendly. They like to shop at the local market. The market is outside, so Brad and Erica get fresh air as they walk around and enjoy the nice weather. Also, prices are usually more reasonable at the market.

Today, Erica wants to buy a beautiful bracelet from a man at the market, but she doesn't have enough cash.

"Do you take credit cards?" she asks.

"No. We only take cash," the man answers.

Erica decides not to buy the bracelet and they leave the man's stall. Brad says that they can return the next weekend to buy the bracelet.

"Maybe," Erica says.

They walk around for another hour looking at clothes and accessories. Brad buys a summer scarf for Erica and they get sandwiches from their favorite food stall.
