LIVEWORKSHEETS

Read the following passage and mark the letter A, B, C or D on your answer sheet to indicate the correct answer to each of the following questions from 31 to 36.

Choosing a career is one of the most important decisions young people make. Some follow their dreams and choose jobs they are passionate about, like art, music, or writing. Others pick safer careers with stable salaries, such as medicine, engineering, or accounting. Both choices have advantages and disadvantages.

Following your passion can bring great satisfaction. When you love your work, you feel motivated every day. Creative jobs allow you to express yourself and do something meaningful. However, these careers can be risky. Artists and musicians often struggle financially, especially at the beginning. Success is not guaranteed, and the income can be precarious. Many passionate workers need second jobs to pay their bills.

On the other hand, traditional careers offer security and good benefits. Doctors, teachers, and engineers usually earn steady incomes and have clear career paths. Parents often encourage their children to choose these jobs because they provide financial stability. But working in a field you don't enjoy can lead to burnout. Some people feel trapped in their careers and regret not pursuing their true interests.

The best approach might be finding a balance. You can start with a stable job while developing your passion as a hobby. Some people amalgamate their interests with practical skills—for example, becoming a graphic designer combines creativity with business needs. The key is to make an informed choice that considers both your heart and your financial future.

[Adapted from Harvard Business Review Career Guide]

Question 33: According to paragraph 2, what is a common reality for individuals pursuing creative professions?

A. They usually achieve guaranteed success after a few years of working.

B. They find it impossible to express their true selves through their tasks.

C. They rarely experience high levels of motivation in their daily routines.

D. They might require additional sources of income to cover living costs.

Question 34: What can be inferred from the author's suggestion in the final paragraph?

A. Following one's heart is always more important than earning a high salary.

B. Stable jobs and personal passions are two things that cannot exist together.

C. Merging artistic talent with commercial demand is a viable career strategy.

D. Developing a hobby is the only way to find happiness in a traditional job.
