For you, a cell phone is probably just a device that you or your friends use to keep in touch with family and friends, take pictures, play games, or send text messages. The definition of a cell phone is more specific: it is a small device you can hold in your hand to talk to others, and it uses cells to send and receive signals.

In 1973, an electronic company called Motorola hired Martin Cooper to work on wireless communication. Motorola and Bell Laboratories (now AT&T) were in a race to invent the first portable communication device. Martin Cooper won the race and became the inventor of the cell phone. On April 3, 1973, Cooper made the first cell phone call to his opponent at AT&T while walking down the streets of New York City. People on the sidewalks gazed at Cooper in amazement as he walked down the street talking on his cellular phone. Cooper's phone was called a Motorola Dyna-Tac. It weighed a whopping 2 ½ pounds (as compared to today's cell phones that weigh as little as 3 or 4 ounces). After the invention of his cell phone, Cooper began thinking of ways to make the cell phone available to the general public. After ten years, Motorola introduced the first cell phones for commercial use.

23. A cell phone is a communication device that uses cells to send and receive signals.
24. Martin Cooper worked for Bell Laboratories when he created the cell phone.
25. Motorola and AT&T were not competitors in the race to invent the first mobile phone.
26. People were amazed to see Martin Cooper using his cell phone in public.
27. Which of the following statements is TRUE about the first cell phone?
- A. Its total weight was as little as 3 or 4 ounces.
 - B. It was first invented in 1937 by Martin Cooper.
 - C. It was first used by its inventor to call his opponent.
 - D. It was first used on the streets of Washington D.C.
28. What is the main idea of the passage?
- A. The history of cell phones and their inventor
