Identifies key information in short paragraphs to show literal understanding of the text.
Recognizes when an event happened in the past based on clues.

1.Read the following text and classify the reading between ongoing situations and finished actions.

Sunny Hill School

At Sunny Hill School, students learn and have fun every day. They study math, English, and science, and teachers help them understand new ideas. Students work together and ask questions in class.

Right now, many students are doing different activities. Some are reading a story, and others are drawing pictures. In the science class, a group is learning about plants. Outside, some children are playing in the playground, and a teacher is watching them.

Yesterday, the school had a special day. Students cleaned their classrooms and picked up trash. They worked in groups and helped each other. At the end of the day, they felt proud because the school looked very clean.

Last week, the school organized a small event. Students played games and shared snacks with their friends. Everyone enjoyed the day.

Last month, the school started a garden. Students planted seeds and watered them. Now, the plants are growing, and students are excited to see them.

At Sunny Hill School, students learn, play, and enjoy every day.
