Read the following passage and mark the letter A, B, C or D on your answer sheet to indicate the correct answer to each of the following questions from 31 to 36.

When the Water Comes

Every year, when the rainy season comes to central Vietnam, many families start watching the sky. They check the water level of the nearby river. They move their things to higher shelves. For people living in these areas, this is not scary. It is just a normal part of life. Floods have come to these villages for many generations, and people have learned to live with them. But in recent years, something has changed. The floods come more often, arrive faster, and cause more damage than before.

Scientists say that climate change is making bad weather more frequent all over the world. In Vietnam, this means stronger storms and heavier rain in a shorter time. Farmers who used to know exactly when to plant their crops now find that the old ways no longer work. Families who built their homes far from the river are finding that they are not safe anymore. The things that communities depended on for hundreds of years are slowly changing.

But people are not just waiting for things to get worse. In many villages, young people are working with local leaders to plant more trees, make riverbanks stronger, and warn their neighbours when danger is coming. This kind of community action is often small and quiet, but it can be very resilient. A disaster does not only show how easily things can break. Sometimes it shows how much people are ready to do for each other when it really matters.

Question 31: Which of the following is TRUE according to the passage?

A. Families in central Vietnam usually leave home before every rainy season

B. Floods in these villages were unknown until recent climate changes began

C. People in flood-prone areas have long treated seasonal floods as part of life

D. Scientists believe river levels in Vietnam are falling during heavy storms

Question 32: The word "resilient" in the third paragraph is closest in meaning to _____.

A. dangerous B. strong C. fearful D. modern

Question 33: The word "frequent" in the second paragraph is OPPOSITE in meaning to _____.

LIVEWORKSHEETS

A. intense B. heavy C. rare D. sudden

Question 34: According to the second paragraph, what is the main consequence of climate change for local farmers?

A. They have lost all their lands due to the rising water levels of the river.

B. They are forced to relocate their farms to areas far from the riverbanks.

C. They have successfully adapted to new weather patterns through better crops.

D. Their previous farming practices are no longer effective for current weather.

Question 35: Why does the writer mention farmers who can no longer plant crops in the usual way?

A. To show that modern farming methods are replacing traditional ones

B. To explain that stronger riverbanks help protect farming land completely

C. To suggest that village life is becoming easier for younger workers

D. To illustrate how climate change is disrupting long-trusted local knowledge

Question 36: Which of the following best summarises the main content of the passage?

A. The severe damage caused by climate change to rural farming communities.

B. The historical process of how villages in Vietnam have adapted to floods.

C. The impact of worsening floods and the community's resilient response.

D. The necessity of planting more trees to stop heavy rain in central Vietnam.
