Reading

Part 1

Read the text about a man who volunteered to help at an animal shelter. Answer the questions which follow. For each question, answer A, B, C or D. (10 marks)

I became a volunteer at an animal shelter while visiting my aunt in Australia. My aunt does volunteer work there, so she asked me if I wanted to help out. At first I wasn't interested because I wanted to do some sightseeing and visit different places in the country. However, she convinced me so I signed up to be a volunteer at the shelter. I'm glad that I did because it turned out to be an amazing experience.

The animal shelter that my aunt helps at offers care to animals in need. The shelter tries to find homes for homeless animals and reunites lost pets with their families. Volunteers, like my aunt, are given some tasks, including feeding the animals, watering and grooming, and cleaning the cages. My aunt is a cat socialiser; her main duty is to give the shelter cats some love and attention.

I am an animal lover and volunteering at the animal shelter allowed me to spend some quality time with the animals that I love. I signed up as a dog walker because I don't think it's right for dogs to be kept in kennels all day long. The dogs were always happy and excited to see me because they knew it was time for their morning walk.

Volunteering at an animal shelter can be very challenging. Since the shelter takes in so many animals, it can become very loud at times. It took me a while to get used to the nonstop barking. Not every animal at the shelter is used to being there and they may feel scared of the volunteers. Some animals can become angry when they feel they are in danger, so it's important to be careful when handling them. However, they calm down and become more comfortable as they get used to their new surroundings.

1 What is the writer doing in this text?
- (a) encouraging people to help out at animal shelters
- (b) warning readers about the dangers of working with animals
- (c) describing his experience as a volunteer at an animal shelter
- (d) listing the reasons why dogs should be taken out for walks

2 What does the writer's aunt do at the animal shelter?
- (a) She tries to find cats new homes.
- (b) She returners the lost cats to their owners.
- (c) She gives water to the cats.
- (d) She spends time with the cats.

3 How did the writer feel about the homeless pets at the shelter?
- (a) He was fond of the animals he worked with there.
- (b) He was surprised that the animals were excited to see him.
- (c) He was upset that the dogs did not have a home.
- (d) He was angry because the dogs were not allowed to leave the kennels.

4 What does the writer say about the challenges of doing volunteer work?

(a) He needed some time to get used to the noise at the shelter.
(b) It was difficult to care for the animals because they were often angry.
(c) He found it difficult to work in the conditions at the shelter.
(d) The new volunteers may get scared of the animals.

5 What would the writer say to a friend?

Helping at the shelter was okay, but I didn't like cleaning the kennels.

(b)

I enjoyed walking the dogs and they loved getting out in the fresh air.

(c)

Doing volunteer work was great but I wanted to do some sightseeing instead of working at the shelter.

(d)

I really liked spending time with my aunt because she paid so much attention to me.
